GRANDMA MOSES

Grandma Moses Dies at 101; Primitive Art Brought Fame

HOOSICK FALLS, N.Y. (AP)—Grandma Moses, the spirited 101-year-old primitive artist whose work has appeared on 100-million Christmas cards, died 12 days before Christmas.

Grandma, who achieved world-wide fame after taking up painting in her late 70s, suffered from a chronic heart ailment.

Her health gradually faded at a nursing home, the Hoosick Falls Health Center, where she had been since July.

But on her 101st birthday, Sept. 7, the spunky, 100-pound farm woman vowed: "I'm going to live to be 200."

She was alone with nurses when she died at 3:15 p.m. Wednesday, her physician, Dr. Clayton Shaw, told newsmen.

She had been in an oxygen tent most of the day, the doctor said. Grandma recently expressed a desire to go home, he said, but she was "sort of indifferent to her surroundings lately."

Only a few weeks ago, however, friends had described her as "bright as a button" most of the time, despite her confinement and doctor's orders against painting.

In death as in life, she attracted the attention of people from all walks of life. Telegrams expressing condolence streamed into her family home at nearby Eagle Bridge, where she had worked.

Grandma Moses was born Anna Mary Robertson on a farm near Greenwich, N.Y. She went to work at 12 as a hired girl, and at 27 married Thomas Salmon.

Farm Bureau Sees Drift to Communism

CHICAGO (AP)—The convention of the American Farm Bureau Federation said in a resolution today that the United States in the past year has moved far into socialism and toward communism.

The statement was made in a resolution criticizing what was called a trend toward increased centralization of power in the federal government.

The voting delegates also gave tentative approval to a farm program which would use a voluntary soil bank payment program to siphon out of production cropland which now produces surpluses that depress farm prices and pile costs on the federal treasury.

If this voluntary program failed to idle enough land, the government could require retirement of additional land as a condition for eligibility for price supports.

President Charles B. Shuman said the Farm Bureau plan would increase farm income from this year's estimated level of $12.6 billion to upwards of $20 billion within a few years compared with what he called the "piddling" increase of $1 billion this year under Kennedy administration programs.

$700 Million Fallout Shelter Plan Readied

Incentive Payments To Schools, Hospitals Included in Proposal

WASHINGTON (AP)—The federal Civil Defense program to be sent to Congress next month will cost about $700 million and include incentive payments for construction of fallout shelters in schools, hospitals, and public welfare institutions.

Deputy Secretary of Defense Roswell L. Gilpatric disclosed details in a news conference today. The program provides federal guidance but no money for individual, home shelters.

The federal incentive program, Gilpatric said in a statement, is planned on the basis of aid for construction of shelter spaces for about 20 million persons in the fiscal year, beginning next July 1. It would make eligible for incentive payments projects started after next Jan. 1.

A booklet on fallout shelters will be available to the public in early January and to news media soon, he said.

A "fact sheet" issued in connection with the news conference gave a look at the government's philosophy about the possibility of all-out attack on this country.

"The likelihood of such an attack is very small, but it is possible," the sheet said. "If it comes, we know its consequences would be terrible. Therefore, we must take what steps we can to protect ourselves through an organized long-range, sensible program of Civil Defense."

Gilpatric summed up the federal government's views about its responsibility for civil defense in this fashion:

"An effective civil defense requires the participation of every citizen. It calls for advance planning at every level of government—local, state and national. This planning must be flexible enough to adapt itself to changes in enemy weapons and tactics. It must be comprehensive enough to cover people living under widely different conditions from ranch houses, to apartment houses, to frame cottages."

"The primary defense obligation of the federal government is to build and maintain enough deterrent power to make any enemy attack unlikely. This deterrent demands a major effort in men, money and organization, now and for the foreseeable future."

The fact sheet said there was no panacea for protection from thermonuclear attack, that "in a major attack on this country, millions—and probably tens of millions—of people would be killed."

But an effective civil defense program, it said, could save large numbers of people who would not otherwise survive.

Best Thing To Save For Retirement Is Self, Expert Says

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP)—The best thing to save for retirement is yourself, says an expert on the subject.

Joseph R. Murphy, who has advised people on retirement for 25 years as manager of the Atlanta office of the Social Security Administration, is getting ready to retire himself Dec. 31.

"Unless you have your health and good life expectancy when you retire, you've defeated all your other purposes," he says.

"Too many people are afraid to retire because they don't have all the income they want. These people never retire until it's too late to enjoy it."

"There's no such thing as retirement," he said. "Rather there is a change of pace, eliminating the demanding duties and fixed schedules."

U.S. Fires Its Sixth Underground A-Test

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Atomic Energy Commission has announced the firing of a sixth underground nuclear test shot.

The detonation Wednesday at the AEC's Nevada test site was described as a low yield blast. This would indicate a strength equal to about 20,000 tons of TNT. The brief AEC announcement gave no further details.

U.N. Urged To Press Katanga Action; Tshombe Asks Poison Arrow Attack

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP)—Backed by the United States and the entire Asian-African bloc, Acting Secretary-General U. Thant was expected today to press U.N. action against the Katanga government despite Britain's call for a cease-fire.

Thant told British Delegate Sir Patrick Dean he would turn Britain's cease-fire request over to his Congo advisory committee. But it was expected the British demand would be rejected in view of the overwhelming support for the U.N. operation in the Congo province.

The cease-fire call widened the split over Congo policy between Britain and the United States, which declared the move was not feasible until "minimum U.N. objectives" are obtained in Katanga. The 49-nation Asian-African group unanimously approved a declaration hailing the U.S. stand on Katanga and throwing full support behind Thant.

Group chairman Mehdi Vail of Iran said the group decided in a closed meeting to express appreciation for both the material and moral support given the U.N. force.

In a reference to Britain and France, Vail said the group had voiced deep concern at lack of cooperation from some permanent members of the Security Council.

Britain's memorandum calling for a cease-fire said Britain was alarmed over "the course of military events of the last few days, which they found difficult to understand in the light of the acting secretary-general's assurance that the objectives of the United Nations forced are to restore freedom of communications and to defend themselves."

The Soviet Union and the United States in a separate move set the scene for new disarmament negotiations by proposing that the General Assembly as a new 18-nation committee to start disarmament talks urgently and report back by June 1.

After months of private discussion, the two major powers submitted a joint resolution to the main Political Committee proposing that eight nonaligned nations—Burma, India, the United Arab Republic, Ethiopia, Nigeria, Brazil, Mexico and Sweden—be added to the 10 nations that previously talked disarmament without getting anywhere.

Irritated, President Moise Tshombe called again Wednesday night for Katanga's ancestral tombs to rally a shower of poisoned arrows on United Nations forces (Continued on Page 2)

Once Around Roundtown

ALL YOUTH of the city, from the 7th grade through college, are invited to a "Carol Sing" on the courthouse steps at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday.

This first annual program has been planned by youth directors of Circleville churches. . . Truman Eberly of Trinity Lutheran Church and director of music at Circleville High School will lend the familiar carols. . .

Each church group has been asked to wear a symbol of Christmas or wear an article of clothing for identification purposes. . .

Following the "Carol Sing" all groups participating will go to the armory on E. Franklin St. where hot chocolate will be served.

POSTMASTER Charles Walters today commended area citizens for their prompt efforts in following published directions for Christmas mailing. . .

Now heading into heavy proportions of Yule mailing, Walters said most of this week the stream of traffic by his office has been at a steady pace rather than busy rushes. . . This tends to help hurried postal employees.

LOOKING FOR missing kitchen utensils? . . . If so, check with Mrs. Tom Bennett at the local Chamber of Commerce office. . . It seems several dishes, plates and other articles were left behind at the Kiwanis Club Ladies Night carry-in Monday at the high school.

EVEN THOSE hardnosed stray dogs felt the cold of early morning. . . One local citizen opened his car door and in jumped an unidentified canine.

THE "Christmas is near" reminder was voiced again today by local merchants. . . Most stores will be open each evening until Dec. 24. . . Open afternoon hours also will be observed Wednesday of next week.

TODAY'S NIPPY weather has prompted Mr. and Mrs. Frank Conkel, 302 Lancaster Pike, to wish they were back in Florida on vacation. . . They and their son, Tommy, returned yesterday.

A high of 86 and a low of 61 were the temperature readings while they were there—They noted that Christmas preparation was about the same in Florida as in Ohio. . . But no toy sleds were seen on display.

DEPUTY SHERIFF Neal Childress had his share of difficulty this morning "filling in" for Mrs. Norma Moats, administrative deputy at the Sheriff's Department. . . The deputy was more than perplexed operating the two-way radio, handling both phones and trying to talk to three persons standing in line seeking information.

BBBBRRRR. . . was probably repeated often early today as local residents left their homes for work. . . A new season record low was set here at 10 degrees above zero. . .

The weatherman has released a "messy" forecast for tonight of freezing rain, turning to snow. . . Scattered snow flurries are expected throughout tomorrow.

Flu Outbreaks on Schedule, U.S. Health Service Reports

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
A lot of people on an island off the coast of Alaska and in Potosi, Mo., have the flu and chances are the United States faces a siege of it.

"These outbreaks are occurring right on schedule—this is about the time for them to start," a spokesman for the Public Health Service said in Washington. The service predicted some time ago there will be a considerable increase in flu cases this winter.

"This spread faster than any flu outbreak I can remember in 38 years of practice in Potosi," said Dr. George S. Cresswell, county health officer. "It hasn't produced severe cases and many of the children are almost well now. The virus is just starting to hit the adults. The children are hit first, then the adults, then the old folks."

Potosi's schools closed Monday when 800 of the 2,400 pupils were absent and will not reopen before next week. Potosi is a mining town 55 miles south of St. Louis.

Another outbreak was reported 80 miles southeast and across the Mississippi River at Wolf Lake, Ill. Only 133 of the 325 high school pupils attended classes Wednesday. Flu was reported on the increase on the Missouri side of the river at Cape Girardeau.

The Coast Guard sent a cutter with vaccine to the village of Hydaburg on Prince of Wales Island along the Alaska coast 80 miles west of Ketchikan.

Thomas Burdon, principal of the Hydaburg school, radioed for help and reported 100 of the 250 residents are ill. The town has no doctor.

Vaccine is scarce throughout Alaska and Ketchikan and its area.

No deaths were reported in the outbreaks in Potosi, Wolf Lake, Cape Girardeau, Hydaburg and Ketchikan.

Bitter Cold Tightens Grip On North U.S.

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Unseasonable cold weather held a tight grip over most of the northern and central sections of the nation today from the Rockies to New England.

There was a little relief from the biting cold in the snow-covered sections of the Midwest. Temperatures, which dropped to zero and far below in 10 states Wednesday morning, moderated. But they were below the normal levels as the season's longest cold snap continued.

The mercury plunged to below zero again this morning in parts of North Dakota and Nebraska but ranged from zero to 10 above in South Dakota, some 20 to 30 degrees higher than Wednesday morning. In North Dakota, it was -12 in Dickinson and -8 in Minot.

Temperatures in the teens were general from the Rockies to the Appalachians and in northern Maine.

The cold air from the Midwest spread across the Ohio and Tennessee valleys Wednesday and moved eastward. Cold wave warnings were posted from the Carolinas into New York state and Connecticut.

Hooky-Players Are Treated Like Heroes

NEW YORK (AP)—The latest thing John Edwards and Michael Unger wanted was publicity. So what did they get? Publicity.

John and Michael, both 17, were playing hooky Wednesday from at least two classes at Manhasset High School. They figured they could cut a gym class and a study period, take a tour of the United Nations, and then get back to their school on Long Island.

They bought public tour tickets like everybody else, but Edwards happened to become the one-millionth visitor to the U.N. in a 12-month period.

As the millionth ticket holder, Edwards was given the VIP treatment—including newsreel shots, press photographers, luncheon in the delegates' dining room, and a private tour of the premises.

Unger, No. 999,999, got in on the honors too.

It was great sport, but very embarrassing after the lads returned to school before afternoon sessions ended.

A school official reported by phone to Mrs. Edwards that her son had a "fantastic excuse" for his absence.

Their big yen to see the U.N., said John and Michael, stemmed from a course they took in political and economic theory.

Military Callup Costs To Zoom

Half-Billion Layout Expected by Summer

WASHINGTON (AP)—The callup of reservists and National Guardsmen is expected to cost more than $500 million by next summer.

This is not the whole cost of the stepped-up mobilization begun last summer on President Kennedy's order.

The rest of the estimated $4 billion increase in the military budget, originally proposed last January, is for equipment, re-opening of bases, expansion of the services through other means and for other items.

One of the biggest single cost items in the callup is for the two federalized National Guard divisions, Wisconsin's 32nd Infantry Division and Texas' 49th Armored Division.

The Budget Bureau estimates this outlay will run to about $300 million, of which $160 million is for personnel costs, such as pay and subsistence, and $140 million is for operation of the two divisions.

In all, about 119,500 Army reservists were recalled. This includes about 21,000 men in the two Guard divisions, 22,000 other Guardsmen in other units and ready reservists. In addition, the Air Force and Navy put about 36,500 Guardsmen and reservists on active duty.

New estimates on costs for the recall, other than those for the two divisions, were not available.

Welfare Fund Stalled at Board Meet

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Transfer of $10.6 million to continue state welfare payments at present levels stalled temporarily in a controlling board meeting today.

The motion with Gov. Michael V. DiSalle presiding received only three affirmative votes. Four are needed for approval.

Rep. Ralph E. Fisher, R-Wayne, House Finance Committee chairman, voted no. Sen. William H. Deddens, R-Hamilton, Senate Finance Committee chairman, deferred his vote and the meeting recessed for lunch.

Other board members, in addition to DiSalle, who voted yes, were Atty. Gen. Mark McElroy and state Auditor James A. Rhodes, voting, C.W. Goble.

Before deputy, Fisher said the state should live within its income.

"We do have the taxpayer to consider," he told the board. Deddens questioned whether transfers should be made at time when the state has increased the number of employees and salaries of some already on the payroll.

DiSalle promised that if Deddens would vote for the transfer, he would see to it that every increase not required by law would be cut back to former levels.

"I will promise you that it will be done," DiSalle said. Deddens said he would consider the offer and decide later how he would vote.

Yule Tree Lighting Set

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Kennedy will wish the nation a Merry Christmas next Wednesday and then set aglow the big national community Christmas tree.

14 Injured In Railroad Crossing Crash

Northern Colorado Is Scene of Tragic Rural Accident

GREELEY, Colo. (AP)—A streamliner passenger train crashed into a school bus in northern Colorado today and at least 20 were killed.

Officials at a temporary morgue set up here said they had 18 bodies there.

At least 14 persons, some in critical condition, were taken to a hospital at Greeley.

Sheriff's officers said the driver of the bus apparently escaped serious injury and was given shelter in the county jail.

He was identified as Duane Harms.

The train was a Union Pacific Railroad streamliner which was traveling westbound. The bus was struck at a crossing two miles east of Evans, which is a short distance south of Greeley.

Greeley is about 50 miles north of Denver. After the accident the train was run on to La Salle, another small community near Greeley.

The bus was one of several from the Greeley School District serving Greeley High School, a junior high school and an elementary school, all in Greeley.

Officials said all of the children aboard the bus were from rural families.

The weather was clear with temperatures below freezing.

The crossing is marked by a sign but has no flashing lights to signal the approach of a train, an official said.

The bus, traveling northwest, apparently drove into the diagonal crossing just as the train approached.

The train struck the bus at its rear end and knocked it about 100 yards.

The scene at the crossing after the crash was one of tragedy and hysteria.

Mothers and fathers of school children from all over the area rushed to the crossing. A number were accompanied by children too young to attend school.

One woman uncovered the body of a dead child and screamed, "My baby, my baby." Then she found the body of a second child. She broke into sobs.

Men at the scene burst into tears at the sight of the mangled bodies.

A doctor was called to give treatment to parents suffering from shock.

A mother whose children were waiting to be picked up by the bus was Mrs. Henry Kaufman.

She said she was looking out the window when she saw the bus approach the crossing. It stopped, she said, then pulled onto the crossing.

A Union Pacific official at Omaha said the train's fireman reported the bus slowed to about 5 miles per hour as it approached the tracks, then picked up speed and started across.

Irishman's Yule Spirit Dampened

YOUNGSTOWN, Ohio (AP)—John (Irish) Lyden, the city's probation officer, is known for his good humor, but he had his Irish temper ruffled Wednesday.

A sneak thief made off with a three-foot Christmas tree Lyden had decorated and placed in the municipal court building in keeping with the holiday season.

There are only two exits from the court building. One adjoins the police station and a person taking the other must pass through City Hall.

It may be out of season, but Lyden says he will put his shillelagh to work if the culprit is caught.

Sentence Is Awaited

Grandma Moses Dies at 101; Primitive Art Brought Fame

HOOSICK FALLS, N.Y. (AP)—Grandma Moses, the spirited 101-year-old primitive artist whose work has appeared on 100-million Christmas cards, died 12 days before Christmas.

Grandma, who achieved world-wide fame after taking up painting in her late 70s, suffered from a chronic heart ailment.

Moses. They settled first in Virginia but later returned to upstate New York.

The couple had 10 children. Her husband died in 1927.

Later in life, her doctor ordered her to give up farm work. She chose as a hobby the weaving of pictures out of yarn. Eventually, arthritis made it impossible for her to hold a needle.

Grandma then turned to painting. Her first materials were some discarded paint she found in a barn on her farm. She never took an art lesson.

Meany Retains Top Labor Post

AFL-CIO Chief Given New Tools for Battle

BAL HARBOUR, Fla. (AP)—George Meany emerged today with a new two-year term as organized labor's top leader and important new tools for dealing with labor's internal and racial problems.

Meany, 67, came out of the week-long AFL-CIO convention with his authority over the 12.5 million member federation more solidly established than ever.

His major accomplishment was in persuading rival building trades and industrial unions to agree on nailing down a tough new disputes settlement system as part of the AFL-CIO constitution.

"This will free us," Meany told the final convention session Wednesday, "free our energies and our time and our money to turn to the real problem, which is to defend the people we represent."

"We have come a long way, but we are still threatened by those who toy with the idea that America would be a better place if we had no unions, or impotent and weak ones worse than no unions."

Besides establishing the new disputes-handling procedure there were other convention highlights. Meany smoothed over a rift with A. Philip Randolph, Negro president of the Sleeping Car Porters Brotherhood. The split had aroused the ire of Negro organizations. Meany put aside a censure move against Randolph and the latter took back some harsh words against Meany.

The convention authorized a civil rights department at AFL-CIO headquarters in Washington to move on its own initiative to expose and eliminate instances of race bias found in labor organizations. Meany promised to put an effective staff to work in the department.

14 Injured In Railroad Crossing Crash

Northern Colorado Is Scene of Tragic Rural Accident

GREELEY, Colo. (AP)—A streamliner passenger train crashed into a school bus in northern Colorado today and at least 20 were killed.

Officials at a temporary morgue set up here said they had 18 bodies there.

At least 14 persons, some in critical condition, were taken to a hospital at Greeley.

Sheriff's officers said the driver of the bus apparently escaped serious injury and was given shelter in the county jail.

He was identified as Duane Harms.

The train was a Union Pacific Railroad streamliner which was traveling westbound. The bus was struck at a crossing two miles east of Evans, which is a short distance south of Greeley.

Greeley is about 50 miles north of Denver. After the accident the train was run on to La Salle, another small community near Greeley.

The bus was one of several from the Greeley School District serving Greeley High School, a junior high school and an elementary school, all in Greeley.

Officials said all of the children aboard the bus were from rural families.

The weather was clear with temperatures below freezing.

The crossing is marked by a sign but has no flashing lights to signal the approach of a train, an official said.

The bus, traveling northwest, apparently drove into the diagonal crossing just as the train approached.

The train struck the bus at its rear end and knocked it about 100 yards.

The scene at the crossing after the crash was one of tragedy and hysteria.

Mothers and fathers of school children from all over the area rushed to the crossing. A number were accompanied by children too young to attend school.

One woman uncovered the body of a dead child and screamed, "My baby, my baby." Then she found the body of a second child. She broke into sobs.

Men at the scene burst into tears at the sight of the mangled bodies.

A doctor was called to give treatment to parents suffering from shock.

A mother whose children were waiting to be picked up by the bus was Mrs. Henry Kaufman.

She said she was looking out the window when she saw the bus approach the crossing. It stopped, she said, then pulled onto the crossing.

A Union Pacific official at Omaha said the train's fireman reported the bus slowed to about 5 miles per hour as it approached the tracks, then picked up speed and started across.

It may be out of season, but Lyden says he will put his shillelagh to work if the culprit is caught.

Once Around Roundtown

ALL YOUTH of the city, from the 7th grade through college, are invited to a "Carol Sing" on the courthouse steps at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday.

This first annual program has been planned by youth directors of Circleville churches. . . Truman Eberly of Trinity Lutheran Church and director of music at Circleville High School will lend the familiar carols. . .

Each church group has been asked to wear or carry a symbol of Christmas or wear an article of clothing for identification purposes. . .

Following the "Carol Sing" all groups participating will go to the armory on E. Franklin St. where hot chocolate will be served.

POSTMASTER Charles Walters today commended area citizens for their prompt efforts in following published directions for Christmas mailing. . .

Now heading into heavy proportions of Yule mailing, Walters said most of this week the stream of traffic to his office has been at a steady pace rather than busy rushes. . . This tends to help hurried postal employees.

LOOKING FOR missing kitchen utensils? . . . If so, check with Mrs. Tom Bennett at the local Chamber of Commerce office. . . It seems several dishes, plates and other articles were left behind at the Kiwanis Club Ladies Night carry-in Monday at the high school.

EVEN THOSE hardnosed stray dogs felt the cold of early morning. . . One local citizen opened his car door and in jumped an unidentified canine.

THE "Christmas is near" reminder was voiced again today by local merchants. . . Most stores will be open each evening until Dec. 24. . . Open afternoon hours also will be observed Wednesday of next week.

TODAY'S NIPPY weather has prompted Mr. and Mrs. Frank Conkel, 302 Lancaster Pike, to wish they were back in Florida on vacation. . . They and their son, Tommy returned yesterday.

A high of 86 and a low of 61 were the temperature readings while they were there—They noted that Christmas preparation was about the same in Florida as in Ohio. . . But no toy sleds were seen on display.

DEPUTY SHERIFF Neal Childress had his share of difficulty this morning "filling in" for Mrs. Norma Moats, administrative deputy at the Sheriff's Department. . .

The deputy was more than perplexed operating the two-way radio, handling both phones and trying to talk to three persons standing in line seeking information.

BRRRRRR. . . was probably repeated often early today as local residents left their homes for work. . . A new season record low was set here at 10 degrees above zero. . .

The weatherman has released a "messy" forecast for tonight of freezing rain, turning to snow. . . Scattered snow flurries are expected throughout tomorrow.

Flu Outbreaks on Schedule, U.S. Health Service Reports

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
A lot of people on an island off the coast of Alaska and in Potosi, Mo., have the flu and chances are the United States faces a siege of it.

"These outbreaks are occurring right on schedule—this is about the time for them to start," a spokesman for the Public Health Service said in Washington. The service predicted some time ago there will be a considerable increase in flu cases this winter.

"This spread faster than any flu outbreak I can remember in 38 years of practice in Potosi," said Dr. George S. Cresswell, county health officer. "It hasn't produced severe cases and many of the children are almost well now. The virus is just starting to hit the adults. The children are hit first, then the adults, then the old folks."

Potosi's schools closed Monday when 800 of the 2,400 pupils were absent and will not reopen before next week. Potosi is a mining town 55 miles south of St. Louis.

Another outbreak was reported 80 miles southeast and across the Mississippi River at Wolflake, Ill. Only 133 of the 325 high school pupils attended classes Wednesday. Flu was reported on the increase on the Missouri side of the river at Cape Girardeau.

The Coast Guard sent a cutter with vaccine to the village of Hydaburg on Prince of Wales Island along the Alaska coast 80 miles west of Ketchikan.

Thomas Burdon, principal of the Hydaburg school, radioed for help and reported 100 of the 250 residents are ill. The town has no doctor.

Vaccine is scarce throughout Alaska and Ketchikan and its area.

No deaths were reported in the outbreaks in Potosi, Wolflake, Cape Girardeau, Hydaburg and Ketchikan.

There was a little relief from the biting cold in the snow-covered sections of the Midwest. Temperatures, which dropped to zero and far below in 10 states Wednesday morning, moderated. But they were below the normal levels as the season's longest cold snap continued.

The mercury plunged to below zero again this morning in parts of North Dakota and Nebraska but ranged from zero to 10 above in South Dakota, some 20 to 30 degrees higher than Wednesday morning. In North Dakota, it was -12 in Dickinson and -8 in Minot.

Temperatures in the teens were general from the Rockies to the Appalachians and in northern Maine.

The cold air from the Midwest spread across the Ohio and Tennessee valleys Wednesday and moved eastward. Cold wave warnings were posted from the Carolinas into New York state and Connecticut.

Military Callup Costs To Zoom

Half-Billion Layout Expected by Summer

WASHINGTON (AP)—The callup of reservists and National Guardsmen is expected to cost more than $500 million by next summer.

This is not the whole cost of the stepped-up mobilization begun last summer on President Kennedy's order.

The rest of the estimated $4 billion increase in the military budget, originally proposed last January, is for equipment, reopening of bases, expansion of the services through other means and for other items.

One of the biggest single cost items in the callup is for the two federalized National Guard divisions, Wisconsin's 32nd Infantry Division and Texas' 49th Armored Division.

The Budget Bureau estimates this outlay will run to about $300 million, of which $160 million is for personnel costs, such as pay and subsistence, and $140 million is for operation of the two divisions.

In all, about 119,500 Army reservists were recalled. This includes about 21,000 men in the two Guard divisions, 22,000 other Guardsmen in other units and ready reservists. In addition, the Air Force and Navy put about 36,500 Guardsmen and reservists on active duty.

New estimates on costs for the recall, other than those for the two divisions, were not available.

NATO Ministers Open Study of Their Defenses

15-Nation Alliance Reviews Progress of Goal of 30 Divisions

PARIS (AP)—The top cabinet ministers of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization today put aside the controversial issue of negotiating with the Soviets on Berlin and turned to the state of Western defenses.

Defense chiefs of the 15-nation alliance took over from the foreign ministers to review progress toward the goal of 30 combat divisions fixed seven years ago but still not achieved.

U.S. Gen. Lauris Norstad, supreme commander of allied forces in Europe, told the Western European Union Assembly Wednesday that a strength of 25 divisions will be reached by the end of this year and possibly 23 of them will be fully equipped.

While the military buildup has quickened since the Communists walked off Berlin, he said more must be done to bolster the allied forces.

It will take "time, effort and money," he declared. "There is no way out of it."

The assembly, drawn from the parliaments of European NATO nations, endorsed Norstad's annual call for a NATO force of 30 divisions, which the NATO strategists say would be sufficient to meet a Communist attack without resort of nuclear weapons.

The assembly also urged the NATO council to give greater authority to allied commanders to deploy their forces and determine their own supply requirements.

This now is entirely in the hands of the individual nations, and the allied commanders have the power only to advise and coordinate.

Need for greater standardization of NATO arms and equipment was also expected to be discussed. There has been much criticism about the growing number of armament projects based mainly on narrow national considerations.

Another important military issue likely to be raised is NATO control over the use of nuclear weapons, now exclusively in the hands of President Kennedy.

34 Hotel Guests Shun Use of Beds

BOSTON (AP)—The Statler Hilton Hotel here has been requested to remove the beds from a number of rooms so 34 guests could sleep in them more comfortably.

The request was from the sponsors of a Korean orphans' choir, touring the United States and Canada.

The 34 children in the choir—ranging in age from 8 to 12—have never slept in beds and they refuse to get the habit now.

They carry their own sleeping bags and crawl into them each night in preference to luxurious comfort.

DiSalle Challenged To Disavow Draft

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Democratic Atty. Gen. Mark McElroy released copies today of a blistering open letter to Democratic Gov. Michael V. DiSalle calling upon the governor to disavow a draft movement now afoot in his behalf.

McElroy, the only announced Democratic candidate for governor, told DiSalle, "I must confess to having some misgivings regarding your sincerity... There are times when I am led to believe that you are co-operating in this draft movement—with a view to causing yourself to change your mind."

Shown a reporter's copy of the McElroy letter, DiSalle remarked: "He sounds shaken up, doesn't he?"

In his sledge-hammer attack which is certain to create the most wide-open split between two

County Court Hears 3 Cases

Disposition was reached on three criminal cases this week in Pickaway County Common Pleas Court.

Robert Johnson, former South Bloomfield marshal, pleaded guilty to charges of embezzling approximately $200 from the village of South Bloomfield.

Johnson was placed on probation for two years and ordered by the court to make full restitution.

Thomas J. Buchan, Corpus Christi, Tex., was found innocent of auto larceny charges by a petit jury. Buchan was found innocent due to insufficient evidence, Judge William Ammer said.

JAMES HILL, 124 1/2 W. Main, charged with the felonious assault of a minor girl early this spring, waived his rights to indictment by the grand jury and was sentenced to the Lima State Hospital for a 30-day observation period.

Hill, who previously maintained he was innocent, changed his plea to guilty. He faced the court yesterday.

Judge Ammer said Hill's sentence will be pending until a report is received from the Lima Hospital upon completion of his observation period.

officeholders of the same party in many a year, McElroy asserted: "May I suggest a solution if you were—and are—sincere in your original and oft-repeated statements that you would not run for reelection: That you issue a public statement firmly disavowing and disowning the draft movement; that you disavow and disown the dictatorial undemocratic pressures being exerted upon public employees and county chairmen; that you reiterate again the fact that you can serve Ohio best unencumbered by a candidacy."

McElroy said Democratic county chairmen have complained to him of pressure to enlist support for the draft-DiSalle movement. He asserted the chairmen feel the pressure is splitting the party and "creating dismay, confusion and rifts that will be long in healing."

McElroy charged: "Key employees in state government have been harassing and coercing lesser state employees to back this movement, regardless of their lack of enthusiasm therefor."

Regarding President Kennedy's scheduled appearance at a $100-a-plate dinner Jan. 6 on DiSalle's 54th birthday party, McElroy asserted: "most revealing to me is the fact that the draft DiSalle movers are, apparently, ready and willing to trade upon the office of the President of the United States; to suggest that the President is coming to Ohio to encourage this draft, and in turn, to cause you to change your mind about running for reelection."

NATO Ministers Open Study of Their Defenses

15-Nation Alliance Reviews Progress of Goal of 30 Divisions

PARIS (AP)—The top cabinet ministers of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization today put aside the controversial issue of negotiating with the Soviets on Berlin and turned to the state of Western defenses.

Defense chiefs of the 15-nation alliance took over from the foreign ministers to review progress toward the goal of 30 combat divisions fixed seven years ago but still not achieved.

U.S. Gen. Lauris Norstad, supreme commander of allied forces in Europe, told the Western European Union Assembly Wednesday that a strength of 25 divisions will be reached by the end of this year and possibly 23 of them will be fully equipped.

While the military buildup has quickened since the Communists walked off Berlin, he said more must be done to bolster the allied forces.

It will take "time, effort and money," he declared. "There is no way out of it."

The assembly, drawn from the parliaments of European NATO nations, endorsed Norstad's annual call for a NATO force of 30 divisions, which the NATO strategists say would be sufficient to meet a Communist attack without resort of nuclear weapons.

The assembly also urged the NATO council to give greater authority to allied commanders to deploy their forces and determine their own supply requirements. This now is entirely in the hands of the individual nations, and the allied commanders have the power only to advise and coordinate.

Need for greater standardization of NATO arms and equipment was also expected to be discussed. There has been much criticism about the growing number of armament projects based mainly on narrow national considerations.

Another important military issue likely to be raised is NATO control over the use of nuclear weapons, now exclusively in the hands of President Kennedy.

They carry their own sleeping bags and crawl into them each night in preference to luxurious comfort.

County Court Hears 3 Cases

Disposition was reached on three criminal cases this week in Pickaway County Common Pleas Court.

Robert Johnson, former South Bloomfield marshal, pleaded guilty to charges of embezzling approximately $200 from the village of South Bloomfield.

Johnson was placed on probation for two years and ordered by the court to make full restitution. Thomas J. Buchan, Corpus Christi, Tex., was found innocent of auto larceny charges by a petit jury. Buchan was found innocent due to insufficient evidence, Judge William Ammer said.

JAMES HILL, 124½ W. Main, charged with the felonious assault of a minor girl early this spring, waived his rights to indictment by the grand jury and was sentenced to the Lima State Hospital for a 30-day observation period.

Hill, who previously maintained he was innocent, changed his plea to guilty. He faced the court yesterday. Judge Ammer said Hill's sentence will be pending until a report is received from the Lima Hospital upon completion of his observation period.

threatening his secessionist regime.

In a speech in Elisabethville, Tshombe called once more for total war against the U.N. and pledged his government "will never leave the national soil." Meanwhile, American Globemasters flew in fresh U.N. troops in what appeared a buildup for an all-out U.N. offensive.

(Katanga's delegation in Belgium Wednesday night reported it had received word that superior U.N. forces had "launched a generalized attack." Dispatches from Elisabethville this morning, however, made no mention of any all-out U.N. offensive.)

Tshombe's speech was virtually a duplicate of one he made just before the fighting broke out 10 days ago.

This time he told his people: "The tom-tom must beat this night to call our warriors to the fight. Everywhere in the bush the army of warriors must answer this ancestral call of our war-tom-toms. Then poisoned arrows will shower on their opponents, each 'oniens' (U.N. man) will be a corpse. It will be total war."

"If necessary we will transform Elisabethville into a mass of ruins. It is not because we will have lost a scorched earth that we will have lost the war. The battle will continue in our cities and in the bush."

"Every U.N. soldier will be a powerless body. No longer will any quarter be given. It will be an all-out fight and we are sure to win."

U.N. jets attacked Elisabethville's southern suburbs Wednesday but there was no report of casualties or damage. At the U.N.-held airport 700 Ethiopians landed to reinforce Indian, Irish and Swedish troops.

Blue Chip Stocks Sink

NEW YORK (AP)—Blue chips and the newly admitted Unilever issues sank on profit taking as the stock market registered a mild decline early this afternoon. Trading was heavy.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks at noon was off 20 at 266.20 with industrials down 40, rails up 20 and utilities down 30.

Losses of most key stocks went from fractions to about a point. Specially situated issues showed wider losses and there was a minority of gainers.

Unilever issues, Wednesday's most active gainers, opened on big blocks and fell sharply as profits were taken.

"The biggest" blue chips which have spearheaded the recent market rally backed away, again on profit taking. The technical condition of the market has been deteriorating from day to day although gains by a few pivotal stocks nudged the Dow Jones industrials to an historic high Wednesday.

Butcher Knife, Ice Pick Used By Woman Fighting Eviction

CINCINNATI (AP) — It took a battle and some bloodshed, but the city of Cincinnati finally evicted Mrs. Carrie Maud Hayes, 48, from her city-owned apartment today.

Officials said Mrs. Hayes has refused to pay any rent for the apartment in a house the city bought last summer for eventual razing as part of its West End slum clearance project.

Police say this is what happened after Deputy Bailiff Sam Bloom, 58, knocked on Mrs. Hayes' door this morning:

A voice asked, "what do you want?"

"I'm the city bailiff and I'm here to evict you," Bloom said.

"Wait till I get my clothes on," answered Mrs. Hayes.

Several minutes later, the door opened. Bloom showed her his badge and repeated why he was there.

"That's too bad," said Mrs. Hayes and slashed the bailiff across the face with a butcher knife.

Bloom jumped back, drew his pistol and fired a shot at the floor. This got Mrs. Hayes off her guard and Bloom was able to take the knife from her.

But the fight was far from over.

Next thing Bloom knew, he had been stabbed in the right hand with an ice pick.

It made him mad and he hit her in the mouth. The blow knocked her back in her apartment and she promptly closed the door and locked it.

Bloom called police. Patrolmen Lenville Rose and Harry Laiveling responded. They called at the door. There was no reply. Rose, 34, kicked in the door.

The impact carried him inside, where Mrs. Hayes was waiting. This time she was armed with a novelty knife that had a five-inch blade shaped like a Samurai sword.

She cut at Rose's left hand, severing two tendons. Rose went for his pistol. Meanwhile Laiveling got behind Mrs. Hayes and took the knife from her.

Rose and Bloom were taken to St. Mary's Hospital. Mrs. Hayes was held for investigation.

4 'Saucers' To Listen to Other Planets

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—A field of "saucers," four 30-foot reflectors for research into intercontinental and interplanetary communications, is slated to start operating at Ohio State University early next year.

The antenna array, to be used by engineers at the university's antenna laboratory, is currently being built under a contract awarded to the Rome Air Development Center, Air Research and Development Command at Griffiss Air Force Base, N.Y.

A fifth supplement to the original 1960 was reported to university trustees today. The $189,000 brings the total awarded through the school's Research Foundation to $435,000.

The antenna first will be used in communications experiments involving an artificial satellite in orbit around the earth. The satellite, Echo II, is expected to be placed in orbit next spring. Transmitters in Trinidad, British West Indies and Rome, N.Y., will beam signals at the satellite and the reflections will be collected by Ohio State's array.

The purpose of the experiment, according to Jon W. Eberle, project engineer, will be to determine the characteristics of the signals with a view toward solving the communications tie-up now existing throughout the world.

The island of Philae, called the Pearl of Egypt, lies between the present Aswan dam and the one soon to be built. The temples on submerged nine months of the year. After the high dam is completed, the bases of the temples will feel fluctuating water levels several times a day.

Butcher Knife, Ice Pick Used By Woman Fighting Eviction

CINCINNATI (AP) — It took a battle and some bloodshed, but the city of Cincinnati finally evicted Mrs. Carrie Maud Hayes, 48, from her city-owned apartment today.

Officials said Mrs. Hayes has refused to pay any rent for the apartment in a house the city bought last summer for eventual razing as part of its West End slum clearance project.

Police say this is what happened after Deputy Bailiff Sam Boom, 58, knocked on Mrs. Hayes' door this morning:

A voice asked, "what do you want?"

"I'm the city bailiff and I'm here to evict you," Boom said. "Wait till I get my clothes on," answered Mrs. Hayes.

Several minutes later, the door opened. Bloom showed her his badge and repeated why he was there.

"That's too bad," said Mrs. Hayes and slashed the bailiff across the face with a butcher knife.

Bloom jumped back, drew his pistol and fired a shot at the floor. This got Mrs. Hayes off her guard and Bloom was able to take the knife from her.

But the fight was far from over.

Next thing Bloom knew, he had been stabbed in the right hand with an ice pick.

It made him mad and he hit her in the mouth. The blow knocked her back in her apartment and she promptly closed the door and locked it.

Bloom called police. Patrolmen Lenville Rose and Harry Laiveling responded. They called at the door. There was no reply. Rose, 34, kicked in the door.

The impact carried him inside, where Mrs. Hayes was waiting. This time she was armed with a novelty knife that had a five-inch blade shaped like a Samurai sword.

She cut at Rose's left hand, severing two tendons. Rose went for his pistol. Meanwhile Laiveling got behind Mrs. Hayes and took the knife from her.

Rose and Bloom were taken to St. Mary's Hospital. Mrs. Hayes was held for investigation.

Inflationary Toll

Congress has its hands full these days just keeping up with inflation. Not only does it find it advantageous at times to increase minimum wage legislation to keep up with spiraling fiscal bases, or to justify increasing costs of government with the excuse "everything costs more," but now it finds even protecting the nation's coinage is affected by inflation.

In 1944, when the dollar was worth considerably more than it is now, Congress passed a law making it a federal crime to use counterfeit coins or slugs in vending machines. Because those were the days treasurers to a treat - seeking youngsters, the law specified only 1, 2 and 5 cent machines.

Inflation has taken its toll in the intervening years, and today more often than not the vending machine has an appetite for dimes, quarters and even dollar bills. But in this instance the law has failed in its attempts to keep up with changes wrought by inflation, and the government is powerless to prosecute unscrupulous persons who attempt to wring a cup of coffee from a machine by inserting a wash-er.

That error will undoubtedly be rectified when Congress convenes in January. A bill would include larger coins on the don't tamper-with list. It is reassuring to note the integrity of the vending machine customer will soon be restored by the vigilance of the U.S. Justice Department.

While Congress is at it, it might as well junk the 194 enactment on pennies and nickels. Any counterfeiter who is willing to work for that kind of money today is more to be pitied than prosecuted.

Losing Ground

Organized labor has been losing ground in the United States in the six years since the AFL and the CIO merged. It has been losing ground for a variety of reasons, not the least of which has been its own inability to settle internal disputes.

There seems to be little doubt that labor has hurt itself by such disputes. The AFL-CIO has been slowly losing members. One reason, perhaps, is that this is a prosperous era and union membership just doesn't appeal to non-members, making recruitment of new members difficult.

Undoubtedly, the process of putting its own house in order, which will now be attempted by the organization, will be good for the AFL-CIO. But it needs more if it is to grow. It needs to adapt itself to the times - and no amount of housecleaning is going to do that job.

Difficult To Be Sick at Home

By JOY STILLEY
(For Hal Boyle)

NEW YORK (AP)—It's getting so you have to make an appointment in our house to be sick.

Not that I'm a hypochondriac, but I do have my pet little aches and pains I like to trot out into the limelight now and then. The trouble is, the limelight is usually already occupied by the big aches and pains claimed by other members of the family.

The juiciest cold I ever had coincided with a case of chicken pox contracted by our daughter. Instead of being able to take miserably to my bed I was forced to spend my days at her bedside reading dry fairy tales punctuated by wet sneezes.

I can't even have a headache in peace. Before I can begin to open negotiations with the small hammer pounding inside my head my two children are hitting each other with large hammers in the first fight they have had in weeks.

There was the time I persuaded my doctor to let me go home from the hospital a day early, on the promise that I would stay in bed and be waited on. Well, that was the night both my husband and son came down with sore throats and temperatures alarmingly in the red. I spent the night commuting from one bedroom to the other as nurse instead of nurse.

The day that I burn my hand while cooking dinner is inevitably the one when nobody else can possibly do the dishes. Hubby has a meeting, the young lady of the household is taking a music lesson and a suddenly studious son has an important test coming up the next day.

A while back, though, I really had it made. I had been chewed on by a king-size virus bug and for once I was sick enough for even my family to take notice. In fact, I was so leaden in the feet and light in the head I did something I'd never done before—called my husband at the office with a feeble plea for help.

"Hang on, honey," he offered encouragingly. "I'll be home just as soon as I can get there. Then you can just take it easy while I take over."

"At long last," I thought smugly as I waited, "now I'll be coddled and fussed over."

Soon I heard a jaunty step, followed by a cheery greeting.

"Now," said my husband, "everything is under control you—just—"

Suddenly he paled and shot out of the room. Sometime later he reappeared, dragging himself weakly to the bedside.

"Move over," he muttered shakily. "Looks like I've got the virus too."

Guess who took care of whom that day?

The Business World

By Sam Dawson

NEW YORK (AP)—The battle of words over tariff policy—growing louder day by day—is giving way temporarily to some action.

Tariff cutting by the United States and Western Europe is at the agreement stage. And some American industries are bound to be displeased. George Ball, U. S. undersecretary of state, gave the tipoff on that when he indicated the new pact would about exhaust the tariff-cutting powers given the President by Congress in 1958.

Long negotiations at Geneva by the 40 nations in the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade (GATT) have been hammering out this fifth round of tariff cuts since GATT came into being in 1948.

Try and Stop Me

By BENNETT CERF

COMMENTING on some of the chronicled last utterances of famous people, John Hutchens expresses a preference for the following:

1. O. Henry's "Turn up the lights. I don't want to go home in the dark."

2. Lady Mary Montagu's "It has all been very interesting."

3. Wilson Mizner's "Well, Doc, I guess this is the main event."

Shortly before he passed away, Hilaire Belloc wrote a couplet that is perhaps the most widely quoted bit in this particular category:

"When I am dead, I hope it may be said,
His sins were scarlet, but his books were read."

Victor Borge urges caution in the use of those new rejuvenation pills. "Take the case of a cousin of mine in Copenhagen. He took some pills guaranteed to make him fifteen years younger and they all but killed him. You see, he was only twelve at the time."

The Passive Trend

By George Sokolsky

What President Kennedy said to the foot-ball dinner was not merely that we watched rather than played games, but that we had become a passive people.

We spend hours each day listening to radio or watching television, but we no longer gather about a piano singing songs or doing a duet or quartette. We watch commentators discuss every subject under the sun, but we do not sit around a pot-bellied stove or a cracker-barrel arguing pro and con.

It is not surprising that President Kennedy raises this issue because he is literate in history and knows that the ancient countries devoted themselves to sports not only to provide exercise for youth but to unify the nation. Will Durant, in his study of Ancient Greece, makes the point:

"Religion failed to unify Greece, but athletics — periodically succeeded. Men went to Olympia, Delphi, Corinth, and Nemea not so much to honor the gods — for these could be honored anywhere — as to witness the heroic contests of chosen athletes, and the ecumenical assemblage of varied Greeks."

Further he says:

"Here under the rubric of athletics we find the real religion of the Greeks — the worship of health, beauty, and strength. 'To be in health,' said Simonides, 'is the best thing for man; the next best, to be of form and nature beautiful; the third, to enjoy wealth gotten without fraud; and the fourth to be in youth's bloom among friends.' There is no greater glory for a man as long as he lives," said the Odyssey, "than that which he wins by his own hands and feet."

The entire nation participated in sports and those who were not admitted into the sports were either aliens or slaves or persons whose bodies were damaged by flaws. Durant makes the point:

"The sixth century saw the peak of the splendor and popularity of athletics in Greece."

In 582 the Amphipytion League established the Pythian games in honor of Apollo at Delphi; in the same year the Isthmian games were instituted at Corinth in honor of Poseidon; six years later the Nemean games were inaugurated to celebrate the Nemean Zeus; and all three occasions became Panhellenic festivals. Together with the Olympic games they formed a periodos, or cycle, and the great ambition of a Greek athlete was to win the crown at all of them."

When the games fell into the hands of specialists and the populace sat and watched the specialists, the physical superiority of the Greek disappeared. But this physical superiority was closely associated with mental superiority; athletics was associated with music, the dance with art. As long as there was a uniform concept of the wholesome body and the wholesome mind, the entire nation was absorbed in the development of personality.

When the Greeks gave up sports and sat about watching what others did, their entire social life was altered. In time the nation became weak.

A Paris designer, we read, is installing a computer in his shop to foretell women's fashions. Shucks — we don't need a mechanical brain to guess that next year's styles will be just the opposite of this year's.

In Chicago two culprits, captured by a police dog, have been convicted and sentenced. Hounded right into jail, as it were!

A bird has more bones in its neck than does a giraffe — nature item. But the giraffe does a lot more with his!

The cocktail hour, says the head of the International Center for Psychodietics, is a "consequence of a advanced civilization." Not nearly as civilized, says the man at the next desk, as the coffee break.

Fifteen of our states now have populations larger than the entire U. S. did in 1790, the Census Bureau reveals. How's that for really Big News.

President Kennedy makes an interesting point when he emphasizes the need for activity rather than observation, for participation rather than passive notice. To watch a foot-ball game and shout under the spell of a cheer-leader is not participation in sport. It is sitting on one's seat and growing fat, it is filling one's gizzard with popcorn and frankfurters. One might as well go to a motion picture theater and watch. Does one ride a horse or merely look at a horse? Does one think for himself or only remember what some commentator has to say on a subject? Are games exciting moments in the lives of small boys or are they merely spectacles controlled by business men and calculated in terms of money receipts?

The President has raised an interesting issue and perhaps he owes the thought to his father who encouraged the Kennedy children to argue over every subject until a Sunday brunch sounded like an Irish debating society and then they all played games together. We laughed at the Kennedy touch foot-ball, but the result is a family closely joined not merely in sports but in affection, ideals and sport.

It is something to hear a Kennedy speak of another Kennedy. There is no envy, no jealousy, no apathy. There is excitement and admiration and the sense of victory for the team — and in the theory of operations, the team becomes the nation.

Inside You and Yours

By BURTON H. FERN, M.D.
What helps sciatica — backache that often shoots down the thigh and leg?

It usually starts with pressure or irritation on any branch of the sciatic nerve, from the small of your back to the tip of your toes. Occasionally, sluggish circulation, vitamin lack and uncontrolled diabetes bring on irritating chemical changes.

Bony icicles and ridges — osteoarthritis — around never opening along the spine may pinch nerve fibers. The cushioning disc between spinal bones may slip out of place and press on nerves.

Muscle tears, torn ligaments connecting spine and pelvis, abnormal spinal bones and scars from old back injuries can all trigger sciatica. You can't tell which. Even your doctor has trouble!

Unless the pain is mild, hop into bed and call him.

Horizontal living rests your back especially when a 34" plywood board under the mattress prevents sagging.

Slide a pillow under straight knees that stretch sciatic nerves painfully.

Aspirins soothe most pain, but for this your doctor has to prescribe stronger medicine. He may inject numbing procaine into certain "trigger areas" to relax painful muscle spasm or twist your back to stretch shrunken old scars.

For soothing, moist heat, apply a warm, wet towel and cover with a dry towel and waterproof plastic. A heating pad or infrared bulb can warm the moist pack when it cools. Warm baths feel like paradise!

Adhesive strapping and special corsets and braces help support your back. Cut calories, and your back won't have to support so much.

Stand straight but relaxed. Strengthen abdominal muscles that help anchor the spine. Lie on your back with hips and knees bent. Raise your head, hold, and let down 5 to 10 times twice a day, gradually increasing.

Don't expect miracles! Your back may take months to heal.

Insurance Rate Change Pondered

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The National Bureau of Casualty Underwriters will ask Insurance Supt. Robert L. Mullins at a public hearing next Tuesday to approve a proposed rating plan that has met state criticism.

The proposal would include franchise operators as part of a single rated risk and provide for automobile liability insurance on cars owned by employees of franchised operators.

Mullins said the proposal appears to be in conflict with department rulings. He said those rulings ban preferential rates or premium treatment based on what he described as fictitious groupings or classification of risks.

Mullins explained that department policy allows grouping of risks for fire or casualty insurance only where there is a common insurable interest such as a fleet policy insuring automobiles under common ownership and control.

Inflationary Toll

Congress has its hands full these days just keeping up with inflation. Not only does it find it advantageous at times to increase minimum wage legislation to keep up with spiraling fiscal bases, or to justify increasing costs of government with the excuse "everything costs more," but now it finds even protecting the nation's coinage is affected by inflation.

In 1944, when the dollar was worth considerably more than it is now, Congress passed a law making it a federal crime to use counterfeit coins or slugs in vending machines. Because those were the days treasurers to a treat - seeking youngster, the law specified only 1, 2 and 5 cent machines.

Inflation has taken its toll in the intervening years, and today more often than not the vending machine has an appetite

Losing Ground

Organized labor has been losing ground in the United States in the six years since the AFL and the CIO merged. It has been losing ground for a variety of reasons, not the least of which has been its own inability to settle internal disputes.

There seems to be little doubt that labor has hurt itself by such disputes. The AFL-CIO has been slowly losing members. One reason, perhaps, is that this is a prosper-

The Business World

NEW YORK (AP)—The battle of words over tariff policy—growing louder day by day—is giving way temporarily to some action.

Tariff cutting by the United States and Western Europe is at the agreement stage. And some American industries are bound to be displeased. George Ball, U. S. undersecretary of state, gave the tipoff on that when he indicated the new pact would about exhaust the tariff-cutting powers given the President by Congress in 1958.

Long negotiations at Geneva by the 40 nations in the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade (GATT) have been hammering out this fifth round of tariff cuts since GATT came into being in 1948.

for dimes, quarters and even dollar bills. But in this instance the law has failed in its attempts to keep up with changes wrought by inflation, and the government is powerless to prosecute unscrupulous persons who attempt to wring a cup of coffee from a machine by inserting a washer.

That error will undoubtedly be rectified when Congress convenes in January. A bill would include larger coins on the don't tamper-with list. It is reassuring to note the integrity of the vending machine customer will soon be restored by the vigilance of the U.S. Justice Department.

While Congress is at it, it might as well junk the 194 enactment on pennies and nickels. Any counterfeiter who is willing to work for that kind of money today is more to be pitied than prosecuted.

first fight they have had in weeks.

There was the time I persuaded my doctor to let me go home from the hospital a day early, on the promise that I would stay in bed and be waited on. Well, that was the night both my husband and son came down with sore throats and temperatures alarmingly in the red. I spent the night commuting from one bedroom to the other as nurse instead of nurse.

The day that I burn my hand while cooking dinner is inevitably the one when nobody else can possibly do the dishes. Hubby has a meeting, the young lady of the household is taking a music lesson and a suddenly studious son has an important test coming up the next day.

Awhile back, though, I really had it made. I had been chewed on by a king-size virus bug and for once I was sick enough for even my family to take notice. In

The actual tariff cutting by the United States and the European Common Market would be under the old rules granted Dwight D. Eisenhower's administration. It is apart from the new and more sweeping authority President Kennedy says he will seek from Congress early in the upcoming session.

The GATT agreement will be classed as action. But it is likely to set off even more words in the angry encounters in Congress that are now being previewed in Washington at a hearing by a Senate-House subcommittee.

When the U.S. reciprocal trade agreements law was extended in 1958, the President was given power to negotiate cuts up to 20 per cent over the four-year extension period on a long list of products.

Tariff reductions worked out in bargaining sessions with other nations have brought strong complaints by various American industries about the increasing competition from cheaper foreign goods.

Further cuts, as hammered out in Geneva, doubtless will add to the list of complaints.

And the still broader powers to lower protective barriers have been fought by many industries in the coming session of Congress.

Those favoring the United States' using all the tariff cutting powers granted in 1958 say that such bargaining is necessary if Americans are to get trade barriers against their goods lowered in other lands. Freer moving of goods in world trade will help everyone in the long run, they argue.

And they make much of a new factor that has arisen since the 1958 action. That is the prospering of the European Common Market. Six nations—France, Italy, West Germany, Belgium, the Netherlands and Luxembourg—are gradually building a common tariff

1. O. Henry's "Turn up the lights. I don't want to go home in the dark."
 2. Lady Mary Montagu's "It has all been very interesting."
 3. Wilson Mizner's "Well, Doc, I guess this is the main event."

The Passive Trend

By George Sokolsky

What President Kennedy said to the football dinner was not merely that we watched rather than played games, but that we had become a passive people.

We spend hours each day listening to radio or watching television, but we no longer gather about a piano singing songs or doing a duet or quartette. We watch commentators discuss every subject under the sun, but we do not sit around a pot-bellied stove or a cracker-barrel arguing pro and con.

It is not surprising that President Kennedy raises this issue because he is literate in history and knows that the ancient countries devoted themselves to sports not only to provide exercise for youth but to unify the nation. Will Durant, in his study of Ancient Greece, makes the point:

"Religion failed to unify Greece, but athletics — periodically succeeded. Men went to Olympia, Delphi, Corinth, and Nemea not so much to honor the gods — for these could be honored anywhere — as to witness the heroic contests of chosen athletes, and the eucumenical assemblage of varied Greeks."

Further he says:

"Here under the rubric of athletics we find the real religion of the Greeks — the worship of health, beauty, and strength. 'To be in health,' said Simonides, 'is the best thing for man; the next best, to be of form and nature beautiful; the third, to enjoy wealth gotten without fraud; and the fourth to be in youth's bloom among friends.' There is no greater glory for a man as long as he lives," said the Odyssey, "than that which he wins by his own hands and feet."

The entire nation participated in sports and those who were not admitted into the sports were either aliens or slaves or persons whose bodies were damaged by flaws. Durant makes the point:

"The sixth century saw the peak of the splendor and popularity of athletics in Greece.

In 582 the Amphictyonic League established the Pythian games in honor of Apollo at Delphi; in the same year the Isthmian games were instituted at Corinth in honor of Poseidon; six years later the Nemean games were inaugurated to celebrate the Nemean Zeus; and all three occasions became Panhellenic festivals. Together with the Olympic games they formed a periodos, or cycle, and the great ambition of a Greek athlete was to win the crown at all of them."

When the games fell into the hands of specialists and the populace sat and watched the specialists, the physical superiority of the Greek disappeared. But this physical superiority was closely associated with mental superiority; athletics was associated with music, the dance with art. As long as there was a uniform concept of the wholesome body and the wholesome mind, the entire nation was absorbed in the development of personality.

When the Greeks gave up sports and sat about watching what others did, their entire social life was altered. In time the nation became weak.

The cocktail hour, says the head of the International Center for Psychodietics, is a "consequence of a advanced civilization". Not nearly as civilized, says the man at the next desk, as the coffee break.

Fifteen of our states now have populations larger than the entire U. S. did in 1790, the Census Bureau reveals. How's that for really Big News.

Inside You and Yours

What helps sciatica — backache that often shoots down the thigh and leg?

It usually starts with pressure or irritation on any branch of the sciatic nerve, from the small of your back to the tip of your toes. Occasionally, sluggish circulation, vitamin lack and uncontrolled diabetes bring on irritating chemical changes.

Bony icicles and ridges — osteoarthritis — around nerve openings along the spine may pinch nerve fibers. The cushioning disc between spinal bones may slip out of place and press on nerves.

SANTA and the FLYING SHOE

by Lucrece Beale

SYNOPSIS: Santa Claus has devised a Seeing Eye for looking through walls and around corners. Now, armed with the Seeing Eye and Mrs. Santa's Pineapple Upside Down Cake, he is off for Polydora to help King Ferdinand against the terrifying Ipswitch.

CHAPTER TEN VISIT FROM AN OLD WOMAN

King Ferdinand was no longer a happy king.

Twice more the Ipswitch had come to Polydora. The first time it had squashed into a peanut butter factory which was certainly a personal insult to the King because everyone knew peanut butter was his very favorite dish. The second time the Ipswitch trampled on a zoon, breaking down fences and upturning cages. Now the Kingdom was swarming with kinkajous and three-toed sloths and even a white elephant or two.

Each time the Ipswitch came it was followed by even stranger happenings at the palace. The King heard mysterious sounds in the dark of night and saw things vanish in the light of day. But by now he was so distraught he no longer knew whether he actually heard and saw things or whether it was all his imagination. He took to sleeping with the light on and shoving his heavy bureau in front of the door. And each night before climbing into bed he would get down on his hands and knees and not only peer under the bed but crawl all the way under it and out the other side just to make sure nothing was there.

Even then, when at last he got into bed, he would not be able to sleep but would lie there shivering and staring and waiting for something, he knew not what, to happen.

So it was he was lying one night, cold with fright, when he heard a tap-tap-tapping at the door. The King lay very still. "If I don't move," he thought, "it will go away." But the tap-tap came again. The King sat on the edge of the bed and stared at the door wondering what on earth to do.

Suddenly the door knob began to turn—slowly, slowly—and the door opened a tiny crack. The King could stand it no longer. He rushed at the bureau in front of the door, pushed it aside and flung open the door.

"W—who are you?" whispered the frightened king.

"Come in, whoever you are!" he shouted wildly.

Standing there was a plump little woman wrapped in a great black shawl that covered her face and hung to the floor.

"W—who are you?" whispered the King, falling back in bewilderment.

The woman took a step forward, tripped over the shawl and fell head long into the room. She threw the shawl back from her head and there was Santa Claus—eyes laughing and red cheeks shining through white whiskers.

He picked himself up and chuckled. "That's my disguise number one. A detective has to have a lot of disguises you know."

Then he told the astonished King how he had gotten his letter and had come to help him. The King bubbled over with happiness and relief.

"This calls for a celebration!"

"And we shall have it," said Santa. He pulled out the box containing the Pineapple Upside Down Cake and laid it on the desk. "I've saved this to share with you."

"My very favorite!" cried the King. "Come and we'll get some milk to go with it."

They sneaked down to the kitchen for a bottle of milk but when they returned the Pineapple Upside Down Cake had disappeared. They searched everywhere but they could not find it.

"There, you see," groaned the King in hungry despair. "The palace is haunted!"

45 Million Yule Trees To Be on Market

Douglas Fir Found To Be Most Popular Among U.S. Buyers

WASHINGTON (AP) — Some 45 million Christmas trees, ranging from tiny table types to huge display trees, are expected to be sold this holiday season.

Many of the trees already have been erected in stores, on streets and in other places that have a commercial touch. Many millions of them will be set up and decorated in homes throughout the country in the next 10 days.

The Agriculture Department said 33 to 35 million trees will come from domestic forests and plantations which specialize in growing of Christmas trees. The remainder already have been imported from Canada where they were cut this fall, some as early as October.

A department expert said Christmas tree growers will collect from 25 cents to $2.50 or more a tree. He said he had no idea what the consumer would pay for his tree, but said it probably would be "all the traffic could bear." However, he said trees this year aren't likely to cost any more than a year ago because there are plenty of them.

The most popular Christmas tree is the Douglas Fir. Next is the Scotch Pine, followed by Balsam Fir, Norway Pine and Easter Red Cedar.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Agriculture Department engineers have developed an experimental wall panel, made of a 2-inch layer of plastic sandwiched between half-inch layers of reinforced portland cement, for use in making farm buildings.

The panels are not yet commercially available. These 8X2-foot panels weigh 200 pounds and have holes for bolting. They cost more than concrete blocks, but building costs would be comparable because a panel building could be erected four times faster than a block building.

The department said the panels are suitable for milking parlors, chicken houses, barns and other

Supreme Court To Review Liquor License Curb Case

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The Ohio Supreme Court has agreed to review injunctions obtained to prevent State Liquor Director Richard C. Crouch from carrying out license revocations which were modified by the state board after the cases reached the court.

Crouch said if the high court rules in his favor the plans to revoke the licenses despite board action to modify the penalties.

Attorneys said the issue to be decided is whether the state liquor board can assume jurisdiction of liquor cases after they have been through the courts.

All of the cases are against tavern operators for gambling violations—allowing pinball machines in their establishments.

The cases are similar to that of Johnny's Night Club in Lorain, operated by John and Dorothy Gay. The board originally revoked the D-5 license (night club license) on a pinball citation. Common pleas court, however, reduced the revocation to a 30-day suspension. Before an appellate court could act on an appeal, the Supreme Court ruled in another case that lower courts could not modify liquor board penalties. The appellate court subsequently reversed the trial court.

The liquor board later imposed a 35-day suspension, but Crouch said last year he would revoke the night club license. The operators then obtained a common pleas court injunction against Crouch and an appellate court affirmed the action.

Crouch then appealed to the Supreme Court from the injunction in the Lorain case and others involved in Wednesday's action. Among the other cases was the Peacock Bar in Lima, operated by Robert E. Sanders, holder of D-1 and 2 beer permits which were suspended for 35 days.

In other actions, the Supreme Court Wednesday:

Rejected an appeal by Allstate Insurance Co. from a $5,000 judgment in favor of Charles Spriggs for injuries received in 1959 when struck in Lima by the car of Larry D. Martin. Martin obtained an insurance policy from the firm after allegedly saying falsely on an application that he never had a policy cancelled by another company.

Affirmed a personal property tax assessment and penalty against the Shoupe Voting Machine Corp. of New York for late filing of 1956-58 returns on voting machines manufactured in Canton and stored in an Akron warehouse for shipment to customers in Ohio and other states. The decision also affirmed elimination by the board of tax appeals of an additional penalty for failure to file 1956 and 1957 returns on time. The additional penalty was imposed by the tax commissioner under a law effective Sept. 7, 1957. The high court said the extra penalty could not be imposed retroactively.

SANTA and the FLYING SHOE

by Lucrece Beale

SYNOPSIS: Santa Claus has devised a Seeing Eye for looking through walls and around corners. Now, armed with the Seeing Eye and Mrs. Santa's Pineapple Upside Down Cake, he is off for Polydora to help King Ferdinand against the terrifying Ipswitch.

CHAPTER TEN VISIT FROM AN OLD WOMAN

King Ferdinand was no longer a happy king.

Twice more the Ipswitch had come to Polydora. The first time it had squashed into a peanut butter factory which was certainly a personal insult to the King because everyone knew peanut butter was his very favorite dish. The second time the Ipswitch trampled on a zoon, breaking down fences and upturning cages. Now the Kingdom was swarming with kinkajous and three-toed sloths and even a white elephant or two.

Each time the Ipswitch came it was followed by even stranger happenings at the palace. The King heard mysterious sounds in the dark of night and saw things vanish in the light of day. But by now he was so distraught he no longer knew whether he actually heard and saw things or whether it was all his imagination.

He took to sleeping with the light on and shoving his heavy bureau in front of the door. And each night before climbing into bed he would get down on his hands and knees and not only peer under the bed but crawl all the way under it and out the other side just to make sure nothing was there.

Even then, when at last he got into bed, he would not be able to sleep but would lie there shivering and staring and waiting for something, he knew not what, to happen.

So it was he was lying one night, cold with fright, when he heard a tap-tap-tapping at the door. The King lay very still. "If I don't move," he thought, "it will go away." But the tap-tap came again. The King sat on the edge of the bed and stared at the door wondering what on earth to do.

Suddenly the door knob began to turn—slowly, slowly—and the door opened a tiny crack. The King could stand it no longer. He rushed at the bureau in front of the door, pushed it aside and flung open the door.

"W—who are you?" whispered the frightened king.

"Come in, whoever you are!" he shouted wildly.

Standing there was a plump little woman wrapped in a great black shawl that covered her face and hung to the floor.

"W—who are you?" whispered the King, falling back in bewilderment.

The woman took a step forward, tripped over the shawl and fell head long into the room. She threw the shawl back from her head and there was Santa Claus—eyes laughing and red cheeks shining through white whiskers.

He picked himself up and chuckled. "That's my disguise number one. A detective has to have a lot of disguises you know."

Then he told the astonished King how he had gotten his letter and had come to help him. The King bubbled over with happiness and relief.

"This calls for a celebration!" "And we shall have it," said Santa. He pulled out the box containing the Pineapple Upside Down Cake and laid it on the desk. "I've saved this to share with you."

"My very favorite!" cried the King. "Come and we'll get some milk to go with it."

They sneaked down to the kitchen for a bottle of milk but when they returned the Pineapple Upside Down Cake had disappeared. They searched everywhere but they could not find it.

"There, you see," groaned the King in hungry despair. "The palace is haunted!"

45 Million Yule Trees To Be on Market

Douglas Fir Found To Be Most Popular Among U.S. Buyers

WASHINGTON (AP) — Some 45 million Christmas trees, ranging from tiny table types to huge display trees, are expected to be sold this holiday season.

Many of the trees already have been erected in stores, on streets and in other places that have a commercial touch. Many millions of them will be set up and decorated in homes throughout the country in the next 10 days.

The Agriculture Department said 33 to 35 million trees will come from domestic forests and plantations which specialize in growing of Christmas trees. The remainder already have been imported from Canada where they were cut this fall, some as early as October.

A department expert said Christmas tree growers will collect from 25 cents to $2.50 or more a tree. He said he had no idea what the consumer would pay for his tree, but said it probably would be "all the traffic could bear." However, he said trees this year aren't likely to cost any more than a year ago because there are plenty of them.

The most popular Christmas tree is the Douglas Fir. Next is the Scotch Pine, followed by Balsam, Fir, Norway Pine and Easter Red Cedar.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Agriculture Department engineers have developed an experimental wall panel, made of a 2-inch layer of plastic sandwiched between half-inch layers of reinforced portland cement, for use in making farm buildings.

The panels are not yet commercially available. These 8X2-foot panels weigh 200 pounds and have holes for bolting. They cost more than concrete blocks, but building costs would be comparable because a panel building could be erected four times faster than a block building.

The department said the panels are suitable for milking parlors, chicken houses, barns and other

Supreme Court To Review Liquor License Curb Case

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The Ohio Supreme Court has agreed to review injunctions obtained to prevent State Liquor Director Richard C. Crouch from carrying out license revocations which were modified by the state board after the cases reached the court.

Crouch said if the high court rules in his favor the plans to revoke the licenses despite board action to modify the penalties.

Attorneys said the issue to be decided is whether the state liquor board can assume jurisdiction of liquor cases after they have been through the courts.

All of the cases are against tavern operators for gambling violations—allowing pinball machines in their establishments.

The cases are similar to that of Johnny's Night Club in Lorain, operated by John and Dorothy Gay. The board originally revoked the D-5 license (night club license) on a pinball citation. Common pleas court, however, reduced the revocation to a 30-day suspension.

Before an appellate court could act on an appeal, the Supreme Court ruled in another case that lower courts could not modify liquor board penalties. The appellate court subsequently reversed the trial court.

The liquor board later imposed a 35-day suspension, but Crouch said last year he would revoke the night club license. The operators then obtained a common pleas court injunction against Crouch and an appellate court affirmed the action.

Crouch then appealed to the Supreme Court from the injunction in the Lorain case and others involved in Wednesday's action. Among the other cases was the Peacock Bar in Lima, operated by Robert E. Sanders, holder of D-1 and 2 beer permits which were suspended for 35 days.

In other actions, the Supreme Court Wednesday:

Rejected an appeal by Allstate Insurance Co. from a $5,000 judgment in favor of Charles Spriggs for injuries received in 1959 when struck in Lima by the car of Larry D. Martin. Martin obtained an insurance policy from the firm after allegedly saying falsely on an application that he never had a policy cancelled by another company.

Affirmed a personal property tax assessment and penalty against the Shoupe Voting Machine Corp. of New York for late filing of 1956-58 returns on voting machines manufactured in Canton and stored in an Akron warehouse for shipment to customers in Ohio and other states. The decision also affirmed elimination by the board of tax appeals of an additional penalty for failure to file 1956 and 1957 returns on time. The additional penalty was imposed by the tax commissioner under a law effective Sept. 7, 1957. The high court said the extra penalty could not be imposed retroactively.

Dear Abby...

By Abigail VanBuren

Observe Your Own Christmas

DEAR ABBY: For 18 years my husband, our children and I have gone to his parents for Christmas dinner. He comes from a large clannish family, and all his sisters and brothers and their children attend this dinner. The whole gang totals 44, so you can picture the commotion. This year I want to have my own Christmas dinner with just my husband, our three children and myself. When I suggested it, my husband blew his top. He said his parents were getting on in years, and after they are gone we can have our own Christmas dinner, but while they are living we should go to their home. Abby, I do not care to wait until his parents die to enjoy a quiet Christmas dinner at home. What is your suggestion?

HATES MOB SCENES
DEAR HATES: Button your lip, put cotton in your ears and go! If you yearn for a quiet

Christmas dinner at home, make your own on Christmas Eve.

DEAR ABBY: I am 12 years old and need your help desperately. I like this one boy very much but I don't think he likes me. I call him up, write to him and have all my friends ask him what he thinks of me but it isn't doing much good. I am fairly cute. Could you please give me some advice on how to get this certain boy without being a pest? Thanks loads.

LOSING OUT

DEAR LOSING: No wonder you are "losing out." No boy wants to be stalked like an animal. Leave him completely alone. And in the future, if you want a boy to become interested in you, let HIM do the chasing.

DEAR ABBY: My problem is my 14-year-old son, who still wets the bed. I have talked to him, but it does no good. I have taken him to our family doctor, and he says there is nothing wrong with the boy. I've threatened to use diapers, and in a couple of days I just might. Do you think that would stop him? But even if it doesn't, would it be a good way to keep the bed in good condition?

FRANTIC

DEAR FRANTIC: No 14-year-old boy wets the bed because he "wants to." It is unpleasant for you, but it's far more unpleasant for the boy. When the doctor said "there is nothing wrong with him," he meant "physically." Bed wetting is frequently an emotional problem. Don't shame, scold or lecture your son. Wash the sheet, say nothing, and eventually your problem will disappear.

CONFIDENTIAL TO M. M. K.: You are mistaken. The only all white dress at the wedding should be the bride's. It's HER day. Wear something else.

Everybody's got a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply, send a self-addressed, stamped envelope to Abby, in care of this paper.

Dear Abby...

By Abigail VanBuren

Observe Your Own Christmas

DEAR ABBY: For 18 years my husband, our children and I have gone to his parents for Christmas dinner. He comes from a large clannish family, and all his sisters and brothers and their children attend this dinner. The whole gang totals 44, so you can picture the commotion. This year I want to have my own Christmas dinner with just my husband, our three children and myself. When I suggested it, my husband blew his top. He said his parents were getting on in years, and after they are gone we can have our own Christmas dinner, but while they are living we should go to their home. Abby, I do not care to wait until his parents die to enjoy a quiet Christmas dinner at home. What is your suggestion?

HATES MOB SCENES
DEAR HATES: Button your lip, put cotton in your ears and go! If you yearn for a quiet

Christmas dinner at home, make your own on Christmas Eve.

DEAR ABBY: I am 12 years old and need your help desperately. I like this one boy very much but I don't think he likes me. I call him up, write to him and have all my friends ask him what he thinks of me but it isn't doing much good. I am fairly cute. Could you please give me some advice on how to get this certain boy without being a pest? Thanks loads.

LOSING OUT

DEAR LOSING: No wonder you are "losing out." No boy wants to be stalked like an animal. Leave him completely alone. And in the future, if you want a boy to become interested in you, let HIM do the chasing.

DEAR ABBY: My problem is my 14-year-old son, who still wets the bed. I have talked to him, but it does no good. I have taken him to our family doctor, and he says there is nothing wrong with the boy. I've threatened to use diapers, and in a couple of days I just might. Do you think that would stop him? But even if it doesn't, would it be a good way to keep the bed in good condition?

FRANTIC

DEAR FRANTIC: No 14-year-old boy wets the bed because he "wants to." It is unpleasant for you, but it's far more unpleasant for the boy. When the doctor said "there is nothing wrong with him," he meant "physically." Bed wetting is frequently an emotional problem. Don't shame, scold or lecture your son. Wash the sheet, say nothing, and eventually your problem will disappear.

CONFIDENTIAL TO M. M. K.: You are mistaken. The only all white dress at the wedding should be the bride's. It's HER day. Wear something else.

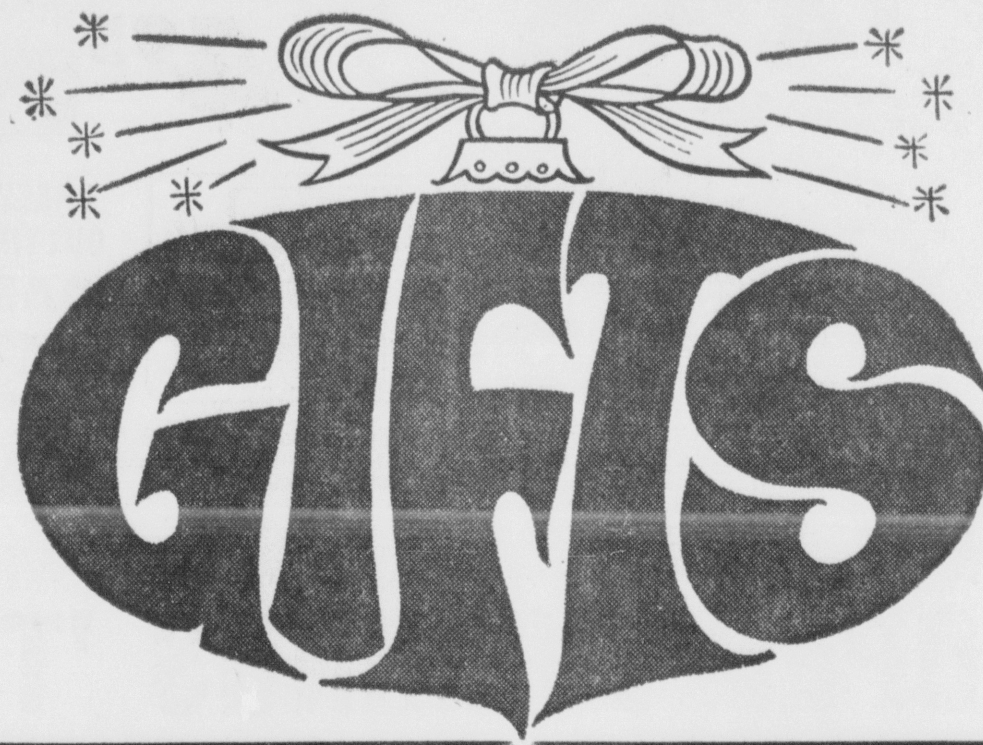

Everybody's got a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply, send a self-addressed, stamped envelope to Abby, in care of this paper.

Oldest Museum in Britain Houses Fascinating Toys

By STEVE LIBBY
Written Especially for Central Press and This Newspaper
Christmas means toys — and between now and the December holiday thousands of visitors, young and old, will visit one of the most unusual museums in the world: the Toy Museum in Britain's Sussex.

In the town of Rottingdean is a fascinating collection of yesterday's playthings housed in the Grange, a gracious 18th century mansion which was once the home of artist Sir William Nicholson, who designed the original setting for Sir James Barrie's "Peter Pan."

There are animated toys operated by spring or string, and there are toys mechanized by clockwork. There are wheel toys, such as the penny toys marketed during the mid and late 19th century.

There is fine art, including a painting by Bergian Pieter Brueghel the Elder which shows some 70 toys in common usage four centuries ago.

There is a sample of "Ye Olde Creek Game of Knucklebones," a game which dates back more than 2,200 years. And there are rocking horses, toy theaters, marionettes, Punch and Judy sets and other playthings dear to the heart of children everywhere. Toys of a dozen foreign lands are represented in one area of the Toy Museum.

Of particular appeal is a tiny tool box made by Lewis Carroll, who wrote "Alice in Wonderland," built for his sister Elizabeth and dated 1846. The box is filled with eight tiny wooden tools.

Another tiny exhibit is a hand-made pair of stockings affixed to a card bearing the hand-written legend "Harriet Line, aged 14, London Orphan Asylum, 1937."

Dolls and stuffed animals are in abundance. One doll is a model of the Duke of Windsor as an infant. Numerous Victorian dolls, primarily dressed, are seated on a shingle beach with big-wheeled bathing carts in the background. In this display case are also doll gallants with cane and top hats to escort the ladies in a scene which may well be England's famed Brighton Beach, from which seaside resort a frequent bus service brings visitors to the Toy Museum.

Teddy bears — the delightful little stuffed animals first designed by Russian immigrant to America, Maurice Michtom, following the return of President Theodore Roosevelt with a pet bear cub from his hunting expedition in the Rockies — occupy an entire exhibit.

Millions of Teddy bears have been manufactured around the world since Roosevelt, responding to a request by Michtom for permission to use his name, said: don't think my name is likely to be worth much in the bear business, but you are welcome to see it."

The Toy Museum is open to the public every day in the year, and is located near the kind of post-writer Rudyard Kipling.

CHECKS G.I. COMPLAINTS—Gov. Wesley Powell of New Hampshire looks over a battery rifle held by Capt. Robert Christy, Manchester, N. H., during a visit to Fort Bragg where the governor personally inspected National Guard units called up for active duty. Because of numerous letters of complaint printed in local paper and received at the executive mansion, Army Intelligence stepped into the picture. Investigation was under way of form letter received at the Army post urging reservists to write complaining letters to their Congressmen.

More Negro Arrests Seen

Georgia City Jails 300 in Racial Fus

ALBANY, Ga. (AP)—Albany police warned more arrests would be made today if—as expected—Negroes resume their anti-segregation demonstrations.

Since Sunday, 555 Negroes and 5 white persons have been arrested in this southwest Georgia city. More than 300 remain in jail.

There has been no violence and little tension in the two days of mass demonstrations resulting from the arrest Sunday of two Albany Negroes and nine "Freedom Riders" out to test segregation on intrastate transportation facilities. White residents of this city of 56,000 have shown little close-range interest in the incidents.

The warnings of continued arrests came from Police Chief Laurie Pritchett after 200 Negroes, including many teenagers and children, were jailed Wednesday night as they marched in protest of earlier arrests.

Indications were that more demonstrations would be staged as the trial of the Freedom Riders group resumes in Recorder's Court.

The wholesale arrests brought from one Negro leader a charge that "a police state" exists within the city. The charge was made by M. S. Page, secretary of the pro-integration Albany Movement.

Page said the Negroes who had been arrested had done nothing but "walk the streets and pray."

Earlier 81 Negroes were herded into City Hall after refusing to halt a kneeling and singing demonstration on the sidewalk in front of the building. All but one was released.

Recorder Abner Israel imposed a five-day jail term on Slater King, a grocer, for contempt of court. King, the spokesman for the group, is a member of the Albany Movement's executive committee.

'Revolutionary' Housing Plan For Oldsters Set by Church

CLEVELAND (AP) — A large Protestant denomination, the United Church of Christ, announced today what it called "revolutionary" plans for going into the field of providing housing for persons over 62.

Its plan is to take new housing to the old folks in the communities where they live, rather than to round them up for institutional living.

Its plan is to offer diversified accommodations — cottages, motel-type, row houses, high-rise apartments. And at diversified sites — in downtown areas, in rural villages, near lakes and resorts.

The housing will be in clusters of units within a 10-mile radius of a central "core unit" which will house the project's administrative office, a health-care facility emphasizing preventive medicine, and an employment service. Efforts will be made to find jobs for oldsters in the community and some will get maintenance work in the project itself.

Tenants will be allowed to move out or to change residence within the project. There will be no admission charge, life-tenancy agreement, assignment of assets or contract for support by relatives.

"I expect this project to demonstrate that decent and dignified living conditions especially designed to meet the needs of elderly people can be created at a price they can afford to pay and without calling for large charitable contributions," the head of the national program said.

He is the Rev. Lawrence M. Upton, 46, of New York, former pastor of the West Hartford, Conn. United Church of Christ and secretary of services for the aging in the United Church's Board for Homeland Ministries, Division of Health and Welfare.

The Rev. Mr. Upton described the program as "one of the first major fruits of the union of the Congregational Christian Churches and the Evangelical and Reformed Church." The two denominations consummated union last July 4.

A $25,000 grant from the Congregational Christian Churches Board of Home Missions provided funds to hire the Rev. Roland S. Larsen of the Community Church in Kipton, Ohio, as executive director of the initial project in adjacent Lorain County. Part of the grant, along with contributions, will be used to get options on sites for construction.

Formal organization for the first project, Firelands Retirement Centers, Inc. of Lorain County, was completed Tuesday. This project will cost about $4.5 million and house about 500 persons. There will be clusters of from 30 to 70 units in nine communities—Lorain, Elyria, Vermilion, Amherst, Kipton, Oberlin, Avon Lake, Westlake, and Olmsted Falls. The core unit, located between the two largest communities — Lorain, a steel center of 68,000, and Elyria, the county seat with 43,500—will house 100 to 150 persons.

The next step is to arrange for federal loans and insured credit made available by recent laws for use in building housing for the aged.

Walker referred to Army charges that he had criticized high government officials and attempted to influence the votes of soldiers in a right-wing indoctrination program.

"I have been charged with nothing. I have been found guilty of nothing. I have been punished for nothing. I have no grievances or regrets," Walker said.

"Today our relations and subordination to the United Nations puts every man signing the (Army) oath under a double standard," he said. "We are sworn to defend America but have to abide by U.N. decisions. Under these conditions, the oath becomes falsified and fictitious. I could no longer serve in uniform and be a collaborator with this release of our sovereignty to the U.N."

Walker said censorship of the military had accomplished three goals of the Communists — to reduce the size of U.S. armed forces limit their use of weapons and undermine their training, morale, and sense of purpose.

'Revolutionary' Housing Plan For Oldsters Set by Church

CLEVELAND (AP) — A large Protestant denomination, the United Church of Christ, announced today what it called "revolutionary" plans for going into the field of providing housing for persons over 62.

Its plan is to take new housing to the old folks in the communities where they live, rather than to round them up for institutional living.

Its plan is to offer diversified accommodations — cottages, motel-type, row houses, high-rise apartments. And at diversified sites — in downtown areas, in rural villages, near lakes and resorts.

The housing will be in clusters of units within a 10-mile radius of a central "core unit" which will house the project's administrative office, a health-care facility emphasizing preventive medicine, and an employment service. Efforts will be made to find jobs for oldsters in the community and some will get maintenance work in the project itself.

Tenants will be allowed to move out or to change residence within the project. There will be no admission charge, life-tenancy agreement, assignment of assets or contract for support by relatives.

"I expect this project to demonstrate that decent and dignified living conditions especially designed to meet the needs of elderly people can be created at a price they can afford to pay and without calling for large charitable contributions," the head of the national program said.

He is the Rev. Lawrence M. Upton, 46, of New York, former pastor of the West Hartford, Conn. United Church of Christ and secretary of services for the aging in the United Church's Board for Homelands Ministries, Division of Health and Welfare.

The Rev. Mr. Upton described the program as "one of the first major fruits of the union of the Congregational Christian Churches and the Evangelical and Reformed Church." The two denominations consummated union last July 4.

A $25,000 grant from the Congregational Christian Churches Board of Home Missions provided funds to hire the Rev. Roland S. Larsen of the Community Church in Kipton, Ohio, as executive director of the initial project in adjacent Lorain County. Part of the grant, along with contributions, will be used to get options on sites for construction.

Formal organization for the first project, Firelands Retirement Centers, Inc. of Lorain County, was completed Tuesday. This project will cost about $4.5 million and house about 500 persons. There will be clusters of from 30 to 70 units in nine communities—Lorain, Elyria, Vermilion, Amherst, Kipton, Oberlin, Avon Lake, Westlake, and Olmsted Falls. The core unit, located between the two largest communities — Lorain, a steel center of 68,000, and Elyria, the county seat with 43,500—will house 100 to 150 persons.

The next step is to arrange for federal loans and insured credit made available by recent laws for use in building housing for the aged.

Walker referred to Army charges that he had criticized high government officials and attempted to influence the votes of soldiers in a right-wing indoctrination program.

"I have been charged with nothing. I have been found guilty of nothing. I have been punished for nothing. I have no grievances or regrets," Walker said.

"Today our relations and subordination to the United Nations puts every man signing the (Army) oath under a double standard," he said. "We are sworn to defend America but have to abide by U.N. decisions. Under these conditions, the oath becomes falsified and fictitious. I could no longer serve in uniform and be a collaborator with this release of our sovereignty to the U.N."

Walker said censorship of the military had accomplished three goals of the Communists — to reduce the size of U.S. armed forces, limit their use of weapons and undermine their training, morale, and sense of purpose.

U.S. Foreign Policy
Censorship Also Hit

DALLAS, Tex. (AP) — Former Maj. Gen. Edwin A. Walker sharply criticized the United Nations, U.S. foreign policy and censorship of the military Tuesday night in his first public address since becoming a civilian.

He addressed a cheering crowd estimated by a Dallas Memorial Auditorium employee at 5,600.

"I welcome the opportunity to stand before you as a symbol of the capability to coordinate the inspired and unchallengeable power of the people with the strength of our military forces. Such unity of purpose and spirit would cause an immediate capitulation of Reds and pinks from Dallas to Washington to Moscow and Peking," Walker said.

The 51-year-old Texan, who resigned from the Army after being reprimanded and relieved of command of the 24th Infantry division, was interrupted frequently with standing applause.

How Weather Looks Today

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Official Weather Bureau summary of Ohio's weather outlook:

Fair skies prevailed over most of the state during the night and early this morning. At dawn, the only clouds reported were in the southwest.

Under fair skies, temperatures again dropped into the teens and even a little lower in some areas. Columbus had 12 degrees early this morning, the coldest of the season so far. Dayton reported 15, Findlay 12, Cleveland 15 and Zanesville 11.

Cloudiness is expected to increase over the state during the day as southerly winds bring in warmer air. Light rain is expected to begin in the extreme southern part of the state tonight and light snow central and north.

The precipitation is forecast to change to snow flurries Friday as another cold front passes through.

Christmas Packages To Bring Warnings

CINCINNATI (AP) — Motorists who leave Christmas packages in plain view in their parked cars face the prospect of a tag from police. But it will carry only a friendly warning.

Same size and color as more familiar traffic tags, the cards point out that "the valuable property (left) in obvious view to passersby" is a "temptation to thieves." It suggests "removal of the property from sight (or) its deposit in the trunk of your car."

Youth To Be Confined In State Hospital

CINCINNATI (AP)—Larry Bullock, 17, faces confinement in Lima State Hospital as a psychopathic offender until such time as he can start indeterminate terms in the state reformatory, Common Pleas Court Judge Ralph Kohnen ruled Wednesday.

Bullock pleaded guilty in October to charges of rape, assault on rape and robbery stemming from attacks upon three young women last winter.

A TOY OUT OF THE PAST—Susan Rivers, Queen of the Chicago Antique Show, relaxes in an early American toy, a wagon from Rock Island, Ill., that dates back to 1860.

Burglars Rig Phone To 'Case' Prospects

CLEVELAND (AP)—The burglar's classic method of "casing" a home may be in danger of disappearing from the modern scene.

Police in suburban Parma report burglars have been hooking up an Army field phone to the outside telephone wires of their victims' homes. A crank of the field phone rings the phone inside. If no one answers, the burglars break in.

Police Lt. Leonard J. Benedict said John P. Garvin found one of the Army telephones on the rear seat of his car Wednesday. Investigation revealed the burglars were in Garvin's garage preparing to call the home when they were frightened away.

Weekly Food Review

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Lamb, turkey, ham and assorted beef roasts will be held out to housewives as the week-end's best meat counter buy — depending on where in the country you live.

In the Northeast for example, shoppers at many supermarkets and groceries will find legs of lamb 10 to 12 cents a pound cheaper than a week ago and as much as 18 cents under a year ago.

One large chain is pricing select cuts at 55 cents a pound, and the bonier roasts at 49 cents.

In the Southeast, ham will be widely featured, with turkey as an attractive alternative.

Because of their continuing abundance, turkeys also will be strong candidates for a place on the Sunday dinner table in Midwest and Southwestern homes.

On the West Coast, budget-minded shoppers will have to choose carefully. They'll see slightly higher price tags on most meat offerings.

In all regions, beef chuck and steaks promise solid competition for the buyer's dollar. Pork loin roasts and other cuts of pork will be pushed at some markets, mainly in the central Plains and Southwest.

Eggs, still plentiful in most areas, remain at bargain levels over most of the nation.

On produce counters there will be plentiful supplies of brussels sprouts, celery, cabbage, tomatoes, onions, cauliflower, potatoes and many other items.

Avocados, oranges, apples, tangerines and grapes will be among featured fruits, together with grapefruit, cranberries and lemons in some sections.

Citrus fruits already are abundant in the Southwest, and are beginning to come in strong at many points.

Chains and small grocers are increasing their offerings of nuts, especially pecans, almonds and peanuts—with pecans often priced at bargain rates.

In the fish line, fillet of flounder, sea scallops and smelts will compete for attention along the East Coast.

Arraignment Due in Stock Fraud Case

CLEVELAND (AP) — Arraignment was set for today for Wilbur H. Ficken, 45, of South Euclid, charged in a federal grand jury indictment with defrauding at least 13 clients of more than $200,000 while a salesman for two Cleveland brokerage firms.

Already indicted by the Cuyahoga County grand jury, Ficken was awaiting trial when the federal indictment was returned.

The federal indictment charges Ficken gained the confidence of customers and induced them to authorize him to gain possession of their securities, redeemed them and pocketed the money. It also charges he made investments with his clients' funds and credited them to his own account. This, it is charged, he did by getting customers to endorse and deliver to him checks received for securities. The indictment also charges Ficken forged endorsements of customers made payable to them.

Extended Area Phone Service Is Ordered

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—In two rulings Wednesday, the utilities commission granted permission for the Chardon Telephone Co. to issue and sell $500,000 in 5 per cent, first mortgage bonds, and ordered Ohio Bell Telephone Co. to install extended area service between the Cleveland metropolitan service area and Chesterland in Geauga County.

Dutch control of Netherlands New Guinea is vigorously contested by Indonesia in a dispute that began when Indonesia became a nation in 1949. Consultation with the native Papuans is largely impracticable since most have never heard of either Indonesia or the Netherlands.

CLEVELAND (AP) — Arraignment was set for today for Wilbur H. Ficken, 45, of South Euclid, charged in a federal grand jury indictment with defrauding at least 13 clients of more than $200,000 while a salesman for two Cleveland brokerage firms.

Already indicted by the Cuyahoga County grand jury, Ficken was awaiting trial when the federal indictment was returned.

The federal indictment charges Ficken gained the confidence of customers and induced them to authorize him to gain possession of their securities, redeemed them and pocketed the money. It also charges he made investments with his clients' funds and credited them to his own account. This, it is charged, he did by getting customers to endorse and deliver to him checks received for securities. The indictment also charges Ficken forged endorsements of customers made payable to them.

Extended Area Phone Service Is Ordered

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—In two rulings Wednesday, the utilities commission granted permission for the Chardon Telephone Co. to issue and sell $500,000 in 5 per cent, first mortgage bonds, and ordered Ohio Bell Telephone Co. to install extended area service between the Cleveland metropolitan service area and Chesterland in Geauga County.

Dutch control of Netherlands New Guinea is vigorously contested by Indonesia in a dispute that began when Indonesia became a nation in 1949. Consultation with the native Papuans is largely impracticable since most have never heard of either Indonesia or the Netherlands.

Mayor Eddie Tam pins a flower on his "first lady."

Merry Eddie Tam Is Mayor Of Unusual Municipality

By JOHN F. SEMBOWER
Central Press Association Correspondent

KAHULUI, Hawaii — Have you met his honor, Edward Fooksin Tam? He is mayor of perhaps the most unusual city in the world, and he is genial Eddie Tam to you and all he meets.

His is an unique municipality because it consists of three of the five major islands in the archipelago that forms the 50th of the United States — Maui, Lanai and Molokai in the Hawaiian Islands.

The other two main islands, as you probably know, are Oahu, where Honolulu holds sway as a metropolis, and the Island of Hawaii itself, the so-called "big island."

It is not entirely far-fetched that you have met Mayor Tam, for he is one of the nation's most gregarious citizens and has just returned to his home stand from a goodwill tour of more than three months to 18 states "on the mainland," and seven major Canadian cities and British Columbia.

A former district governor of Lions International, he is one of the most active members of that far-flung service club. His acquaintance in its membership is huge.

This is his seventh term and 13th year as mayor. When he first ran, party politics as it exists in the U. S. was just forming in Hawaii as statehood loomed, so it is not too surprising here that initially he bore the label of Republican, but after that first election he has been one of the ranking if not indeed the top Democrat in the new state.

At 61 he is walking testimonial to the advantages of a climate which he so enthusiastically proclaims to all who will lend an ear. He looks hardly 40.

This also may reflect the fact that for a long time he was one of the island's top tennis players, and today is a ranking amateur golfer. Among book enthusiasts he is best known for his deadly accuracy with a putter—backhand-ed!

The top island official outside of Honolulu and Washington, Tam also is, except for Sen Hiram L. Fong, the highest ranking elected official in the United States of pure Chinese descent. His parents were Tam Hong and Jeng Kiu.

His "first lady" is one of the great beauties of the Islands, the former Lily Hisea Morimoto. She is just as Japanese as he is Chinese. Married Dec. 31, 1948, they

Grand Jury Upholds Cop In Death Case

CLEVELAND (AP)—The Cuyahoga County grand jury has upheld a ruling by Chief Police Prosecutor Richard F. Matia that the fatal shooting of a Negro man by a white detective was justifiable homicide.

The jury, following a six-hour hearing Wednesday, returned a no-bill in the shooting of Albert Rugley, 38, by detective Theodore Hospodar Nov. 15.

Rugley was killed after Hospodar and his partner, detective James Kriz, had entered the kitchen of a Cleveland apartment.

Hospodar claimed he shot Rugley after the Negro struck him with the butt of a knife. The detective was hospitalized with a swollen eye.

Persons at a party in the apartment of Rugley's cousin, Mrs. Willie Mae Griffin, contended Rugley merely brushed his hand against Hospodar's face.

Following Matia's ruling, the legal redress committee of the Cleveland Chapter, National Association for the Advancement of Colored People asked County Prosecutor John T. Corrigan for a grand jury hearing.

Harold B. Williams, executive secretary of the NAACP here, said Wednesday night his organization had "no comment at this time" on the grand jury ruling.

Hospodar and Kriz said they followed Rugley into the Griffin apartment, believing him to be the man who fled from a car that stopped in front of the house and then drove on. They said they had followed the car from a nearby rapid transit stop, suspecting it had been used by a purse snatcher.

Rugley's car was found parked near the Griffin home.

Porters Are Hosts For Council Meet

Monroe Township Advisory Council No. 10 held its December meeting Wednesday evening in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Herman Porter. Elbee Jones, chairman opened the meeting and heard the secretary's report. Discussion leader William Davis presented the topic, "Keeping America Strong."

Refreshments were served to Mr. and Mrs. Jones, Mr. and Mrs. Francis Furniss, Mrs. Allen Foor, Mr. and Mrs. Howard Tallman and daughters Barbara and Debbie, Mr. and Mrs. William Davis and children Janet and Jeffrey and Mrs. Bertha Porter.

Plans were made for the annual ham supper to be served in the Methodist Church basement on Jan. 10. All members are urged to attend.

The World Today

By James Marlow

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Allies are a picture of disunity and confusion. They can't agree on how to deal with the Russians on Berlin, they're miles apart on what to do about the Congo.

This is so much gravity for Premier Khrushchev. He began his rumormongering on Berlin last June, kept it up a couple of months. By September the Allies were clearly split on how to handle him.

He quieted down then, but has been quiet ever since, letting them wrangle. Driving a wedge between them may have been the most he ever hoped to accomplish from creating the trouble in the first place.

Rich Katanga Province in the Congo, with its huge mineral resources, is the economic backbone of the country. Without it the rest of the Congo is sick. Katanga's President Moise Tshombe pulled it out.

His native Katangese troops, who probably have no particular loyalty to Tshombe but are working for cash, are led by hired, white, outside professional soldiers, a band of mercenaries.

To restore peace the United Nations sent in troops to rout out the mercenaries. The United States backs this U.N. action. The British, French and Belgians do.

not. Rich Britishers, Frenchmen and Belgians, reportedly have enormous investments in the mines of Katanga.

This split showed up again Wednesday in the one place where it is most embarrassing: at a meeting of the NATO foreign ministers. NATO is the Western powers' military alliance against Russia.

Secretary of State Dean Rusk, at the NATO meeting, assured this country's 14 Allies it would never:

Barter away the war-won right of Western troops to stay in Berlin, weaken free access to Berlin through Communist East Germany or permit damage to West Berlin's economic and political freedom.

But he said the West must exhaust every chance of a peaceful solution to avoid the possibility of war with Russia. This means he thinks it's a good idea at least to discuss the problems with the Russians.

The British agree. The West Germans are said to agree. But French President Charles de Gaulle apparently not only doesn't want any bargaining, he doesn't even want any talking.

He thinks even discussing Berlin with the Russians is a show of weakness. Rusk says patience is not weakness. This back-and-forth bit could go on and on.

The point is that six months after Khrushchev first stirred up the Berlin trouble, the Allies are at sixes-and-sevens.

There was a time before De Gaulle came to power that the United States could pretty well call the shots. De Gaulle, who has made a career of being his own man, is demonstrating he will decide for himself.

This is all very impressive. But Khrushchev, in the next moves he makes, will show whether it's also very practical. The allied disunity is an encouragement to him to push his luck a little harder.

No Easy Path Is Seen to Road Safety

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—"There is no easy road to traffic safety, but we are not without a road-map," the president of the National Safety Council said Wednesday at a United Safety Action Conference held here.

Former Arkansas Gov. Howard Pyle told the 1,200 delegates to the day-long meeting. "Wherever a United coordinated effort has been applied to central objectives, there has been a significant decrease in traffic accidents."

Gov. Michael V. DiSalle also spoke at the conference.

He said: "Improvement in four areas of traffic safety — accident prone locations, narrow bridges, clear roads and education—has brought results in reducing deaths and property loss in Ohio."

The meeting was sponsored by the governor's Traffic Safety Committee and the Department of Highway Safety.

During a business session, John Coleman, executive director of the Ohio Municipal League, was elected chairman of DiSalle's committee.

By JOHN F. SEMBROWER

KAHULUI, Hawaii — Have you met his honor, Edward Fooksin Tam? He is mayor of perhaps the most unusual city in the world, and he is genial Eddie Tam to you and all his neeques.

His is an unique municipality because it consists of three of the five major islands in the archipelago that forms the 50th of the United States — Maui, Lanai and Molokai in the Hawaiian Islands.

The other two main islands, as you probably know, are Oahu, where Honolulu holds sway as a metropolis, and the Island of Hawaii itself, the so-called "big island."

It is not entirely far-fetched that you have met Mayor Tam, for he is one of the nation's most gregarious citizens and has just returned to his home stand from a goodwill tour of more than three months to 18 states "on the mainland," and seven major Canadian cities and British Columbia.

A former district governor of Lions International, he is one of the most active members of that far-flung service club. His acquaintance in its membership is huge.

This is his seventh term and 13th year as mayor. When he first ran, party politics as it exists in the U. S. was just forming in Hawaii as statehood loomed, so it is not too surprising here that initially he bore the label of Republican, but after that first election he has been one of the ranking if not indeed the top Democrat in the new state.

This also may reflect the fact that for a long time he was one of the Island's top tennis players, and today is a ranking amateur golfer. Among links enthusiasts he is best known for his deadly accuracy with a putter—backhand-ed!

The top island official outside of Honolulu and Washington, Tam also is, except for Sen Hiram L. Fong, the highest ranking elected official in the United States of pure Chinese descent. His arents were Tam Hong and Jeng Kiu.

His "first lady" is one of the great beauties of the Islands, the former Lily Hise Morimoto. She is just as Japanese as he is Chinese. Married Dec. 31, 1948, they are a tremendously popular and decorative couple. More than 800 persons honored them at an unforgettable luau, that famous Hawaiian feast rite, on the mayor's 60th birthday.

Proud that he is of Chinese ancestry and that Mrs. Tam is full Japanese, he uses this to stress how cosmopolitan are the islands. "There are very few Hawaiians left now," he explains. "We have all races and all nationalities — Caucasian, Spaniards, Chinese, Japanese, Filipinos, Puerto Ricans — we all live happily together."

The city and the three islands comprise one of Hawaii's four counties. Although "Mayor" is on his door, Tam officially is county chairman and executive officer.

A former banker, he is a superbly efficient executive. In his "sad-lad days" he led a famous local dance band, so he also is cut out to be the entertainer that often falls the lot of a mayor anywhere in the world.

Fellow townsmen love him for his solid administration, and for his color, which includes the fancy motor car he uses to cover Maui the way Fiorello LaGuardia used to turn up everywhere on Manhattan. He uses a seaplane to drop in on the parts of his municipality separated by arms of the Pacific Ocean.

Always of a monumental good humor, Mayor Tam has one pet peeve that he intends to correct — the inclination of too many visitors to jump right over Maui on a swing from Oahu to Hawaii.

You have missed the best part of the memorable experience, he assures you — the world's largest sugar plantation, the world's biggest extinct volcano, the most breathtaking scenery, and so on and on —

But you also have missed meeting one of the world's most gracious citizens, "merry mayor of Maui," as home folk call him, for he is here to greet one and all!

TOP TEEN—Katherine Anne (Katie) Keith, 18, of Columbia, Mo., has her hands full as newly-appointed chairman of the 1962 New March of Dimes Teen Age Program (TAP).

Teen-Agers Add Lively Lift To March of Dimes Campaign

Slave auctions in this Civil War Centennial Year?

It can — and does — happen here, with the flower of American youth on the block.

But in this century, there's a difference. Now it's all in a good cause. Members of the New March of Dimes Teen Age Program (TAP) auction their services to the highest bidder among local merchants. The money goes to support The National Foundation-March of Dimes attack on birth defects, arthritis and polio.

It's all part of TAP members' lively approach to volunteer community service. They also sponsor walkathons (shades of the Thirties!) in which teams from rival schools move toward the finish line as dimes are contributed. They dance for dimes at casual sock hops and formal balls, man concessions at school sports events, and hold community car washes.

Through such ingenious fun-for-funds projects, TAP's raised nearly three-quarters of a million dollars during the 1961 March of Dimes.

For the 1962 New March of Dimes in January, tens of thousands of the youthful volunteers are literally "on TAP." In more than 75 per cent of The National Foundation's 3,100 local county chapters, active TAP committees are determined to hit new highs in fun as well as funds.

Adult advisors who work with TAPs point out that underlying the outward frivolity of the teenagers' projects is a deep awareness of the need for increased research and progress in the fight against crippling birth defects, arthritis and polio. During the year, many youngsters assist in local patient services by reading to disabled children, writing letters for severely crippled arthritics or working as hospital aides.

A prime year-round responsibility of TAP members is distribution of information about National Foundation Health Scholarships to students in high schools and colleges. Each year, more than 500 four-year scholarships with a full value of $2,000 apiece are offered for study in medicine, nursing, physical therapy, occupational therapy and medical social work. TAP members know the desperate need to reduce the shortage of manpower in the health professions by encouraging students to undertake careers in these fields.

Leader of the Teen Age Program for the 1962 New March of Dimes is national chairman Katherine Anne Keith, 18, of Columbia, Mo. Blonde, brainy and born to be busy, Katie will handle her major responsibilities as top TAP while she pursues an ambitious freshman schedule at the University of Missouri.

On the basis of past performance, juggling scholarship and volunteer service won't intimidate Katie. She was 1961 Missouri state TAP chairman during her strenuous senior year in high school. Under her leadership, Missouri TAPs showed record gains in membership, services to chapters and funds raised for the March of Dimes.

At the same time, Katie maintained grades that ranked her third in her graduating class of almost 300 students. She was a National Merit Scholarship finalist and received the Kiwanis Good Citizenship award. She was business manager — and occasional sportswriter — for the school paper, treasurer of the National Honor Society, queen of the major social function of the school year, had a lead role in the school play, "Teahouse of the August Moon," and actively participated in math, history, English and French clubs.

She also teaches a Sunday School class at Missouri Methodist Church in Columbia.

After a summer in Europe, including study at the Sorbonne in Paris, the energetic Katie began to plan for a banner year of TAP activity for the March of Dimes. "Teenagers who are looking for a sense of satisfaction along with fun and friendship are missing a bet if they don't check TAP activities in their local March of Dimes chapters," she said. "A TAP committee isn't just another youth organization — it's not merely a club to serve youth. Instead it gives us an opportunity to serve our communities."

During the Civil War, Meramec Caverns, Stanton, Mo., housed thousands of the South's run-away slaves. As a link in the North's underground railroad system, the caves came under heavy fire from Confederate troops.

A carry-in supper preceded the regular meeting and Christmas party of Star Grange Tuesday evening in the Monroe School auditorium. Tables were decorated with Christmas arrangements and candles.

Paul Long, worthy master, presided at the business meeting and heard various reports. Mrs. Shirley Anderson, card and flower chairman, reported sending a flower to Winfred Bidwell at Fayette Memorial Hospital and told of her plans to send cards of cheer at the holiday season.

Mrs. Herman Porter, chairman of Community Service, reported that nine grange members had responded to a call for blood from University Hospital last week. Giving were Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Reid, Raymond Hanawalt, Arthur Die, Charles Rivers, Ronald Rivers, Kenneth Stoer, William Finch and Kenneth Reid. She also announced plans to make Christmas cheer for children at Children's Hospital, and also to fill baskets for the needy.

A thank you note was read from Mr. and Mrs. Carroll Reid for the help received following a fire at their home.

Mrs. Frederick Overly, lecturer, thanked the Grange for sending her to the lecturers conference last month. She distributed programs, booklets decorated with candles and Christmas trees. The opening song was "Silent Night". The chaplain, Mrs. Francis Furniss, gave the thought for the day. Harold Furniss read the "Origin of the Candle" and Mrs. Paul Dawson, Mrs. Kenneth Shell, Flem Blair, Mrs. William Finch and Brenda Reid gave a dialogue reading, "So Softly Radiant."

The juveniles circled the altar and all members formed a circle around them. While Mrs. Carl Dutton sang, "If Everyone Lit Just One Little Candle".

The group then sang a number of Christmas carols. Santa appeared to present each with a gift and treat around the gaily decorated Christmas tree.

The next regular meeting will be Jan. 9.

State Health Program Said 'Disgraceful'

CLEVELAND (AP)—Gov. Michael V. DiSalle Wednesday night called the state's mental health, education, correction and welfare programs disgraceful and parried a question on whether he will run for reelection.

The governor spoke to 250 persons at a meeting of the Summit County Democratic Advisory Committee which, in its business session earlier, had passed a resolution urging the governor to reconsider his decision not to run for reelection.

Questioned whether he would run, the governor said: "I do not consider the question relevant. The chair said questions should be limited to the program."

The governor's speech reiterated a theme contained in previous speeches by him.

"I cannot believe the voters of Ohio want to save money at the expense of the sick, the needy and the young," he said, "and I won't believe it."

DiSalle said he would meet with a committee today "not to try to increase the State Aid for the aged monies but to maintain them at the present level."

TOP TEEN—Katherine Anne (Katie) Keith, 18, of Columbia, Mo., has her hands full as newly-appointed chairman of the 1962 New March of Dimes Teen Age Program (TAP).

Teen-Agers Add Lively Lift To March of Dimes Campaign

Slave auctions in this Civil War Centennial Year?

It can — and does — happen here, with the flower of American youth on the block.

But in this century, there's a difference. Now it's all in a good cause. Members of the New March of Dimes Teen Age Program (TAP) auction their services to the highest bidder among local merchants. The money goes to support The National Foundation-March of Dimes attack on birth defects, arthritis and polio.

It's all part of TAP members' lively approach to volunteer community service. They also sponsor walkathons (shades of the Thirties!) in which teams from rival schools move toward the finish line as dimes are contributed. They dance for dimes at casual sock hops and formal balls, man concessions at school sports events, and hold community car washes.

Through such ingenious fun-for-dimes projects, TAPs raised nearly three-quarters of a million dollars during the 1961 March of Dimes.

For the 1962 New March of Dimes in January, tens of thousands of the youthful volunteers are literally "on TAP." In more than 75 per cent of The National Foundation's 3,100 local county chapters, active TAP committees are determined to hit new highs in fun as well as funds.

Adult advisors who work with TAPs point out that underlying the outward frivolity of the teenagers' projects is a deep awareness of the need for increased research and progress in the fight against crippling birth defects, arthritis and polio. During the year, many youngsters assist in local patient services by reading to disabled children, writing letters for severely crippled arthritics or working as hospital aides.

A prime year-round responsibility of TAP members is distribution of information about National Foundation Health Scholarships to students in high schools and colleges. Each year, more than 500 four-year scholarships with a full value of $2,000 apiece are offered for study in medicine, nursing, physical therapy, occupational therapy and medical social work. TAP members know the desperate need to reduce the shortage of manpower in the health professions by encouraging students to undertake careers in these fields.

Leader of the Teen Age Program for the 1962 New March of Dimes is national chairman Katherine Anne Keith, 18, of Columbia, Mo. Blonde, brainy and born to be busy, Katie will handle her major responsibilities as top TAP while she pursues an ambitious freshman schedule at the University of Missouri.

On the basis of past performance, juggling scholarship and volunteer service won't intimidate Katie. She was 1961 Missouri state TAP chairman during her strenuous senior year in high school. Under her leadership, Missouri TAPs showed record gains in membership, services to chapters and funds raised for the March of Dimes.

At the same time, Katie maintained grades that ranked her third in her graduating class of almost 300 students. She was a National Merit Scholarship finalist and received the Kiwanis Good Citizenship award. She was business manager — and occasional sportswriter — for the school paper, treasurer of the National Honor Society, queen of the major social function of the school year, had a lead role in the school play, "Teahouse of the August Moon," and actively participated in math, history, English and French clubs. She also teaches a Sunday School class at Missouri Methodist Church in Columbia.

After a summer in Europe, including study at the Sorbonne in Paris, the energetic Katie began to plan for a banner year of TAP activity for the March of Dimes.

"Teenagers who are looking for a sense of satisfaction along with fun and friendship are missing a bet if they don't check TAP activities in their local March of Dimes chapters," she said. "A TAP committee isn't just another youth organization — it's not merely a club to serve youth. Instead it gives us an opportunity to serve our communities."

During the Civil War, Meramec Caverns, Stanton, Mo., housed thousands of the South's run-away slaves. As a link in the North's underground railroad system, the caves came under heavy fire from Confederate troops.

A carry-in supper preceded the regular meeting and Christmas party of Star Grange Tuesday evening in the Monroe School auditorium. Tables were decorated with Christmas arrangements and candles.

Mrs. Herman Porter, chairman of Community Service, reported that nine grange members had responded to a call for blood from University Hospital last week. Giving were Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Reid, Raymond Hanawalt, Arthur Die, Charles Rivers, Ronald Rivers, Kenneth Stoer, William Finch and Kenneth Reid. She also announced plans to make Christmas cheer for Children at Children's Hospital, and also to fill baskets for the needy.

Ex-Educator's Auto Hurts 3 Children

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—A retired school principal in an automobile, allegedly running a red light, ran into a group of five children in a school zone Wednesday.

Three children were hurt, one seriously, by the car driven by Chelsea A. Pollock, 71. Pollock is former principal of Glenmont Elementary School. The accident occurred near John Burroughs Elementary School on the West Side.

Gregory Gardner, 11, suffered a possible ruptured spleen and forehead and back injuries when he was dragged by the auto and trapped under its rear axle. A hydraulic jack had to be used to free him. The other two injured escaped with cuts and bruises.

Police cited Pollock for running a red light and failing to yield to pedestrians in a crosswalk.

Sgt. T. R. Thral said he would recommend that Pollock be re-examined by the state to determine if he should retain his driver's license.

The New York City Health Department has estimated that in one year alone the city saved nearly $20 million in patient care plus an unestimated amount in hospital construction thanks to effective new drugs for the treatment of tuberculosis.

Punishment Proves Best Teaching Aid

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Sweet and bitter inducements to swift learning, fast-beating feminine hearts and the effects of high living standards on blood pressure are subjects in the medical news.

Pat or Rap?
Various experiments have indicated that animals learn faster when they are punished for mistakes than when they are rewarded for correct responses. A combination of reward and punishment brings the best results.

But how about humans?
Drs. R. K. Penney and A. A. Lupton of Ancaster, Ont., Canada, ran 60 trials on children. The kids were told to distinguish between white and black sections painted in squares. A piece of candy was the reward for a correct answer. An incorrect answer triggered a loud, unpleasant noise.

Individual children in the punishment group heard only the noise from their mistakes. The rewarded group received candy only for correct answers. Children in the third group were given a combination of noise or candy, depending on the correctness of their answers.

The results as reported in the magazine Medical Science: unlike the animal tests, the combination rewarded-punishment group ran a poor second. The punishment group was an easy winner and the reward group placed last. Fluttering Hearts

A naval physician in a recruiting station in Los Angeles was puzzled to find heart murmurs in from 25 to 40 per cent of the Waves he examined. These murmurs were short and soft and varied with the position of the subject and the rate of her breathing. He rarely found these murmurs in men. So he queried the American Medical Association headquarters in Chicago.

An AMA consultant offered this opinion: there are some indications women have more murmurs than men the same age. But slight murmurs can be accentuated by rapid flow through the arteries. And a fast-beating heart speeds up blood flow.

The consultant said: "Young women seem to be more nervous than men on physical examinations, particularly in large examination centers with many people involved. This might account for the increased pulse rate, and, therefore, increased blood flow." High Living

High blood pressure may be the standard price, world over, for a high standard of living.

One of the latest studies linking these two factors was made in the Fiji Islands. The doctors found that a group of Indian men in Suva, Fiji, who enjoyed a relatively high standard of living had higher blood pressures than the local rural male population.

"There is a graduation in the incidence of high blood pressure among several races of the Pacific islands that parallels the degree to which they have been influenced by Western culture," said the doctors' report to the Journal of the American Medical Association.

A Report on Kennedy—

It's Easier to Criticize A President than Be One

EDITOR'S NOTE—The promise of active, vigorous leadership was a persistent note in John F. Kennedy's campaign. How successful has he been translating pledge into reality? This is the fourth of five articles on the President's performance in his 11 months in office.

By ARTHUR EDSON
WASHINGTON (AP)—No man can properly judge the leaders of his own time.

Few around Abraham Lincoln, so savagely ridiculed by his contemporaries, could have guessed that in 100 years he would be so venerated.

Even fewer of those around the respected U. S. Grant could have thought that history would rate the general's presidential ability so low.

To a politician, history is a luxury; he must make his decisions now.

And each of us—with our varying backgrounds that influence, and often imprison, our thinking can render nothing better than on-the-spot judgments on our leaders. Over the long haul how well we judge determines how well and where we are led.

Yet when we try to answer the question—how is John F. Kennedy doing after 11 months as President?—we quickly run into something hard to pin down and impossible to prove: the quality of the leadership he offers.

It was Kennedy who put this emphasis on leadership. A couple of examples from his speeches will recall the tone of his campaign.

In Fort Worth, Kennedy said: "Lyndon Johnson and I do not promise a life of ease. We cannot promise a solution to the problems which disturb our lives, but we can promise that if we are successful we can move with vigor and vitality on the problems which disturb us here and around the world."

In Hamtramck, Mich.: "The function of the President of the United States is to build a strong society here, to maintain full employment, to educate our children, to provide security for our aged citizens, to provide justice for the people, to build an image of a society on the move, so that people around the world who wonder what road they should take will

Ohio's Idle Pay List Still On Increase

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Unemployment compensation claim totals are continuing a weeks-long rise in Ohio, but still are far below the totals of the same period last year.

In new claims, the total filed in the week ended Dec. 9 was 19,412. This compared to 17,161 in the week ended last Nov. 18, and an average of 30,604 new claims filed weekly in December of last year.

Continuing claims hit 94,985 in the week ended Dec. 9. This compared with 82,405 in the week ended last Nov. 18. In December last year the average continuing claims on file each week was 171,745.

"Mostly seasonal," bureau officials commented today when asked if there was any significance in the climb, relating to Ohio's economy. It was pointed out that some minor labor-management disputes, some layoffs in the steel industry added to the increases, but primarily the seasonal drop of activity in the construction industry was reflected in the totals.

decide: 'We want to go with the United States; they represent the future.'"

Obviously these goals are too great for the most daring and imaginative leader to reach in 11 months. But in this town you can get a first rate argument over whether Kennedy has made a decent beginning.

Those around Kennedy, naturally, insist he is on his way. Naturally, this is the President's own view.

At a news conference he was asked about his campaign promises, and whether he would change them if he were campaigning again.

"No," Kennedy said, "it would be exactly what it was. We have met a good many of these commitments and I am hopeful that before our term is ended that we will meet the others."

Republicans dutifully pecked away at Kennedy, although few go so far as Rep. Walter H. Judd, R-Minn. "I say in dismay that he is a great deal weaker than I thought he would be," Judd told a GOP meeting in Minneapolis. "Mr. Kennedy won't let others make decisions and he won't make them himself."

Possibly the complaint heard most frequently, sometimes from those friendly to the administration, is that for all Kennedy's talk about this nation needing a strong sense of purpose it still seems to be drifting.

One of President Eisenhower's closest advisers says Kennedy was so convinced that Republicans over-organized the White House that he errs in the other direction.

"How do they assess their strength and assign priorities when the President thinks Cabinet meetings are a waste of time?" this person asked. "What are their main goals? Why, they're all main goals under this arrangement."

He paused, and then delivered the unkindest cut of all.

"What they need, maybe only for four or five months, is a Sherman Adams type to give direction to the operation."

No one in the Eisenhower administration drew as heavy Democratic fire as Adams, who served as a sort of assistant president. Here, of all places, Kennedy is least likely to copy his predecessor.

This same Republican says Kennedy's own behavior creates confusion.

"He is emphatic against a summit conference, and yet he goes to one. He is emphatic on Laos, and then he lets it trail off. He sends up a farm program, and says this is what he has to have, and when it's changed around completely, he says this is what he wanted after all."

"He says he wants a balanced budget and then he says, no, I don't. He talks about a missile gap and then one of his men says how strong we are. Which, of course, is true."

"It's no wonder the picture of Kennedy comes through a little smoky."

Those around the President aren't disturbed by criticism from an obviously partisan source, or by complaints from some Kennedy supporters who feel everything is moving too slowly.

Compacently they point to a Gallup opinion poll that shows 77 per cent approval of the way Kennedy is doing his job, 12 per cent disapproval, with 11 per cent undecided.

Politicians praise a poll when it's with them, and kick it when it's unfavorable. This is no exception.

John M. Bailey, Democratic National chairman, says: "If Kennedy were running for office now, he'd win tremendously."

But Rep. William E. Miller of

New York, GOP national chairman, says the poll merely proves that in a cold war each citizen prefers to say, yes, he supports the president. In a hot political campaign, he says, Kennedy's margin would quickly melt.

Even if Miller is wrong, the Democrats have an embarrassing contradiction.

When Eisenhower was rolling up big margins in similar polls, the Democratic reaction was: this only proves that Eisenhower is popular. It has nothing to do with leadership. Good leadership may require taking an unpopular stand.

At the very moment Kennedy was saying this country was standing still, and a driving leader was needed to get it moving again, Eisenhower was doing fine in the polls.

But effective presidential leadership involves far more than one man.

Beginning with George Washington, critics have found the easiest way to hit a president is to shoot at those surrounding him.

In Kennedy's case, the complaint has usually been that the White House is overstocked with college professors.

But an official in a position to know says Kennedy is well pleased with his choices.

"Of course," he said, "he's more pleased with some than with others."

Of all the Democrats consulted on the Kennedy team performance only one had reservations.

After praising the brilliance of the White House help, he said: "My main complaint is, not one has had any administrative experience. They're really just boys."

But it's easy to criticize a president; it's harder to be one. And no one has learned that more quickly than John Fitzgerald Kennedy.

On July 25, at the end of a radio-television address, he said: "When I ran for the presidency of the United States I knew that this country faced serious challenges. But I could not realize, nor could any man realize who does not bear the burdens of this office, how heavy and constant would be those burdens."

Kennedy, who only six months before had spoken so confidently about leadership, now said: "I need your good will and your support and, above all, your prayers."

Next: World full of problems.

March of Dimes Clinic Head Forecasts Pre-Marital Tests

Before most thoughtful young couples marry, they do a great deal of planning for the future. They ponder about jobs, homes of their own, saving money for their retirement years.

All well and good, but —
The pediatrician-in-chief, at famed Johns Hopkins University Hospital, Baltimore, Md., wishes they would invest as much thought — before marriage — in their planning for healthy children.

Dr. Robert E. Cooke predicts the development of pre-marital tests which would forewarn of genetic deficiencies or flaws in either or both parties to a marriage that could cause their children to be born with serious defects due to heredity.

Dr. Cooke speaks from extensive knowledge of the problem. In addition to his academic position, he is responsible for the Birth Defects Special Treatment Center at Johns Hopkins, which is financed by March of Dimes contributions from the Baltimore City and County chapters of the National Foundation.

The genetic tests which Dr. Cooke sees for the future would bring to light gene patterns in potential parents that could cause their children to be born deaf, blind, mentally retarded or malformed.

By the same token, the tests when adequately developed would also reassure the vast majority of young couples of the likelihood of their having normal, healthy families.

What if a young couple agrees to undergo these searching tests, and the results show they might have babies with congenital malformations? Would such a marriage be forbidden?

"By no means," Dr. Cooke said in a recent interview. "The tests should be voluntary. An unfavorable prognosis or prediction should not provide, in my view, either legal or moral grounds for advising against marriage."

"The results of biochemical examination of their blood and cell enzymes should be made available to prospective parents and the outlook for their offspring made quite clear. But ultimate decision as to marriage should be left to the individuals themselves."

Dr. Cooke added that genetic defects in the husband and wife may also be the cause of childlessness.

Pursuing his line of thought further, Dr. Cooke said that our young people should be given a better understanding of this subject. Proper instruction would minimize anxiety and permit them to plan their futures in a mature manner. The noted pediatrician would like to see more genetic investigation and counseling of patients by physicians — he calls it "anticipatory medicine." He feels that medical students should become much more knowledgeable about human embryology.

"More than a quarter of a million babies with significant birth defects are born every year in the United States — almost 700 daily. Until scientific research can develop means to prevent these tragedies, young people who are the mothers and fathers of future generations should understand how and why they happen," he said.

Such premarital tests as Dr. Cooke advocates are not practical today on a widespread basis because of a lack of appropriate laboratories.

"But with increased research in birth defects, and with improvement in our medical technology and our laboratory facilities, genetic tests will soon become practical and feasible," he predicted.

"Through them we may well come to the actual detection of future birth abnormalities and possibly prevent many by proper handling of the pregnancy."

Dr. Cooke says there is a great confusion regarding the term, "birth defects." Medically, these are congenital anomalies caused by genetic factors or by injury to the embryo during its life in the womb. Most of the general public mistakenly believes that birth defects are limited to those apparent at birth, such as missing extremities, an enlarged head (hydrocephalus) or open spine (spina bifida). But many more subtle birth defects are not disclosed until maturity and even middle age.

For example, severe high blood pressure appearing in later life has been shown in many instances to result from congenital malformations of the blood vessels of the kidneys, a disorder present at birth but unrecognizable at that time. Birth defects also account for many cases of diabetes, urological disorders and gout that do not become apparent until middle life. The list could be substantially lengthened Dr. Cooke pointed out. The Birth Defects Special Treatment Center at Johns Hopkins is one of a rapidly growing number of centers in various parts of the nation financed by National Foundation chapters using March of Dimes contributions. They provide comprehensive medical care for victims, with emphasis on early diagnosis, prevention of disability, knowledge concerning birth defects.

In addition, the voluntary health organization has established university-affiliated birth defects clinical study and research centers in Columbus, Ohio, Oklahoma City and Nashville, Tenn. A similar program of March of Dimes-supported treatment and research centers in arthritis is also in effect across the country.

"Birth defects cause 21,000 deaths each year in the United States," says Dr. Cooke. "That's twice the toll taken by tuberculosis and ten times the annual number of deaths from whooping cough, measles, polio and infectious hepatitis combined."

"The National Foundation-March of Dimes is taking a historic forward step in searching for a preventive. Until it is found, one thing we might do is to determine, before marriage, what types of family genetic histories are likely to lead to the calamity of major birth defects. Punishment Proves Best Teaching Aid

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Sweet and bitter inducements to swift learning, fast-beating feminine hearts and the effects of high living standards on blood pressure are subjects in the medical news.

Pat or Rap?
Various experiments have indicated that animals learn faster when they are punished for mistakes than when they are rewarded for correct responses. A combination of reward and punishment brings the best results.

But how about humans?
Drs. R. K. Penney and A. A. Lupton of Ancaster, Ont., Canada, ran 60 trials on children. The kids were told to distinguish between white and black sections painted in squares. A piece of candy was the reward for a correct answer. An incorrect answer triggered a loud, unpleasant noise.

Individual children in the punishment group heard only the noise from their mistakes. The rewarded group received candy only for correct answers. Children in the third group were given a combination of noise or candy, depending on the correctness of their answers.

The results as reported in the magazine Medical Science: unlike the animal tests, the combination rewarded-punishment group ran a poor second. The punishment group was an easy winner and the reward group placed last.

Fluttering Hearts
A naval physician in a recruiting station in Los Angeles was puzzled to find heart murmurs in from 25 to 40 per cent of the Waves he examined. These murmurs were short and soft and varied with the position of the subject and the rate of her breathing. He rarely found these murmurs in men. So he queried the American Medical Association headquarters in Chicago.

An AMA consultant offered this opinion: there are some indications women have more murmurs than men the same age. But slight murmurs can be accentuated by rapid flow through the arteries. And a fast-beating heart speeds up blood flow.

The consultant said: "Young women seem to be more nervous than men on physical examinations, particularly in large examination centers with many people involved. This might account for the increased pulse rate, and, therefore, increased blood flow."

High Living
High blood pressure may be the standard price, world over, for a high standard of living.

One of the latest studies linking these two factors was made in the Fiji Islands. The doctors found that a group of Indian men in Suva, Fiji, who enjoyed a relatively high standard of living had higher blood pressures than the local rural male population.

"There is a graduation in the incidence of high blood pressure among several races of the Pacific islands that parallels the degree to which they have been influenced by Western culture," said the doctors' report to the Journal of the American Medical Association.

A Report on Kennedy—

It's Easier to Criticize A President than Be One

EDITOR'S NOTE—The promise of active, vigorous leadership was a persistent note in John F. Kennedy's campaign. How successful has he been translating pledge into reality? This is the fourth of five articles on the President's performance in his 11 months in office.

By ARTHUR EDSON
WASHINGTON (AP)—No man can properly judge the leaders of his own time.

Few around Abraham Lincoln, so savagely ridiculed by his contemporaries, could have guessed that in 100 years he would be so venerated.

Even fewer of those around the respected U. S. Grant could have thought that history would rate the general's presidential ability so low.

To a politician, history is a luxury; he must make his decisions now.

And each of us—with our varying backgrounds that influence, and often imprison, our thinking can render nothing better than on-the-spot judgments on our leaders. Over the long haul how well we judge determines how well and where we are led.

Yet when we try to answer the question—how is John F. Kennedy doing after 11 months as President?—we quickly run into something hard to pin down and impossible to prove: the quality of the leadership he offers.

It was Kennedy who put this emphasis on leadership.

A couple of examples from his speeches will recall the tone of his campaign.
In Fort Worth, Kennedy said: "Lyndon Johnson and I do not promise a life of ease. We cannot promise a solution to the problems which disturb our lives, but we can promise that if we are successful we can move with vigor and vitality on the problems which disturb us here and around the world."

In Hamtramck, Mich.: "The function of the President of the United States is to build a strong society here, to maintain full employment, to educate our children, to provide security for our aged citizens, to provide justice for the people, to build an image of a society on the move, so that people around the world who wonder what road they should take will decide: 'We want to go with the United States; they represent the future.'"

Obviously these goals are too great for the most daring and imaginative leader to reach in 11 months. But in this town you can get a first rate argument over whether Kennedy has made a decent beginning.

Those around Kennedy, naturally, insist he is on his way. Naturally, this is the President's own view.

At a news conference he was asked about his campaign promises, and whether he would change them if he were campaigning again.

"No," Kennedy said, "it would be exactly what it was. We have met a good many of these commitments and I am hopeful that before our term is ended that we will meet the others."

Republicans dutifully pecked away at Kennedy, although few so far as Rep. Walter H. Judd, R-Minn. "I say in dismay that he is a great deal weaker than I thought he would be," Judd told a GOP meeting in Minneapolis. "Mr. Kennedy won't let others make decisions and he won't make them himself."

Possibly the complaint heard most frequently, sometimes from those friendly to the administration, is that for all Kennedy's talk about this nation needing a strong sense of purpose it still seems to be drifting.

One of President Eisenhower's closest advisers says Kennedy's closest advisers say Kennedy was so convinced that Republicans over-organized the White House that he errs in the other direction. "How do they assess their strength and assign priorities when the President thinks Cabinet meetings are a waste of time?" this person asked. "What are their main goals? Why, they're all main goals under this arrangement."

He paused, and then delivered the unkindest cut of all.

"What they need, maybe only for four or five months, is a Sherman Adams type to give direction to the operation."

No one in the Eisenhower administration drew as heavy Democratic fire as Adams, who served as a sort of assistant president. Here, of all places, Kennedy is least likely to copy his predecessor.

This same Republican says Kennedy's own behavior creates confusion.

"He is emphatic against a summit conference, and yet he goes to one. He is emphatic on Laos, and then he lets it trail off. He sends up a farm program, and says this is what he has to have, and when it's changed around completely, he says this is what he wanted after all."

"He says he wants a balanced budget and then he says, no, I don't. He talks about a missile gap and then one of his men says how strong we are. Which, of course, is true."

"It's no wonder the picture of Kennedy comes through a little smoky."

Those around the President aren't disturbed by criticism from an obviously partisan source, or by complaints from some Kennedy supporters who feel everything is moving too slowly.

Compacently they point to a Gallup opinion poll that shows 77 per cent approval of the way Kennedy is doing his job, 12 per cent disapproval, with 11 per cent undecided.

Politicians praise a poll when it's with them, and kick it when it's unfavorable. This is no exception.

John M. Bailey, Democratic National chairman, says: "If Kennedy were running for office now, he'd win tremendously."

But Rep. William E. Miller of

New York, GOP national chairman, says the poll merely proves that in a cold war each citizen prefers to say, yes, he supports the president. In a hot political campaign, he says, Kennedy's margin would quickly melt.

Even if Miller is wrong, the Democrats have an embarrassing contradiction.

When Eisenhower was rolling up big margins in similar polls, the Democratic reaction was: this only proves that Eisenhower is popular. It has nothing to do with leadership. Good leadership may require taking an unpopular stand.

At the very moment Kennedy was saying this country was standing still, and a driving leader was needed to get it moving again, Eisenhower was doing fine in the polls.

But effective presidential leadership involves far more than one man.

Beginning with George Washington, critics have found the easiest way to hit a president is to shoot at those surrounding him.

In Kennedy's case, the complaint has usually been that the White House is overstocked with college professors.

But an official in a position to know says Kennedy is well pleased with his choices.

"Of course," he said, "he's more pleased with some than with others."

Of all the Democrats consulted on the Kennedy team performance only one had reservations.

After praising the brilliance of the White House help, he said: "My main complaint is, not one has had any administrative experience. They're really just boys."

But it's easy to criticize a president; it's harder to be one. And no one has learned that more quickly than John Fitzgerald Kennedy.

On July 25, at the end of a radio-television address, he said: "When I ran for the presidency of the United States I knew that this country faced serious challenges. But I could not realize, nor could any man realize who does not bear the burdens of this office, how heavy and constant would be those burdens."

Kennedy, who only six months before had spoken so confidently about leadership, now said: "I need your good will and your support and, above all, your prayers."

Next: World full of problems.

March of Dimes Clinic Head Forecasts Pre-Marital Tests

Before most thoughtful young couples marry, they do a great deal of planning for the future. They ponder about jobs, homes of their own, saving money for their retirement years.

All well and good, but —
The pediatrician-in-chief, at famed Johns Hopkins University Hospital, Baltimore, Md., wishes they would invest as much thought — before marriage — in their planning for healthy children.

Dr. Robert E. Cooke predicts the development of pre-marital tests which would forewarn of genetic deficiencies or flaws in either or both parties to a marriage that could cause their children to be born with serious defects due to heredity.

Dr. Cooke speaks from extensive knowledge of the problem. In addition to his academic position, he is responsible for the Birth Defects Special Treatment Center at Johns Hopkins, which is financed by March of Dimes contributions from the Baltimore City and County chapters of the National Foundation.

The genetic tests which Dr. Cooke sees for the future would bring to light gene patterns in potential parents that could cause their children to be born deaf, blind, mentally retarded or malformed.

By the same token, the tests when adequately developed would also reassure the vast majority of young couples of the likelihood of their having normal, healthy families.

What if a young couple agrees to undergo these searching tests, and the results show they might have babies with congenital malformations? Would such a marriage be forbidden?

"By no means," Dr. Cooke said in a recent interview. "The tests should be voluntary. An unfavorable prognosis or prediction should not provide, in my view, either legal or moral grounds for advising against marriage."

"The results of biochemical examination of their blood and cell enzymes should be made available to prospective parents and the outlook for their offspring made quite clear. But ultimate decision as to marriage should be left to the individuals themselves."

Dr. Cooke added that genetic defects in the husband and wife may also be the cause of childlessness.

Pursuing his line of thought further, Dr. Cooke said that our young people should be given a better understanding of this subject. Proper instruction would minimize anxiety and permit them to plan their futures in a mature manner. The noted pediatrician would like to see more genetic investigation and counseling of patients by physicians — he calls it "anticipatory medicine." He feels that medical students should become much more knowledgeable about human embryology.

"More than a quarter of a million babies with significant birth defects are born every year in the United States — almost 700 daily. Until scientific research can develop means to prevent these tragedies, young people who are the mothers and fathers of future generations should understand how and why they happen," he said.

Such premarital tests as Dr. Cooke advocates are not practical today on a widespread basis because of a lack of appropriate laboratories.

"But with increased research in birth defects, and with improvement in our medical technology and our laboratory facilities, genetic tests will soon become practical and feasible," he predicted.

"Through them we may well come to the actual detection of future birth abnormalities and possibly prevent many by proper handling of the pregnancy."

Dr. Cooke says there is a great confusion regarding the term, "birth defects." Medically, these are congenital anomalies caused by genetic factors or by injury to the embryo during its life in the womb. Most of the general public mistakenly believes that birth defects are limited to those apparent at birth, such as missing extremities, an enlarged head (hydrocephalus) or open spine (spina bifida). But many more subtle birth defects are not disclosed until maturity and even middle age.

For example, severe high blood pressure appearing in later life has been shown in many instances to result from congenital malformations of the blood vessels of the kidneys, a disorder present at birth but unrecognizable at that time. Birth defects also account for many cases of diabetes, urological disorders and gout that do not become apparent until middle life. The list could be substantially lengthened Dr. Cooke pointed out. The Birth Defects Special Treatment Center at Johns Hopkins is one of a rapidly growing number of centers in various parts of the nation financed by National Foundation chapters using March of Dimes contributions. They provide comprehensive medical care for victims, with emphasis on early diagnosis, prevention of disability, knowledge concerning birth defects.

In addition, the voluntary health organization has established university-affiliated birth defects clinical study and research centers in Columbus, Ohio, Oklahoma City and Nashville, Tenn. A similar program of March of Dimes-supported treatment and research centers in arthritis is also in effect across the country.

"Birth defects cause 21,000 deaths each year in the United States," says Dr. Cooke. "That's twice the toll taken by tuberculosis and ten times the annual number of deaths from whooping cough, measles, polio and infectious hepatitis combined."

"The National Foundation-March of Dimes is taking a historic forward step in searching for a preventive. Until it is found, one thing we might do is to determine, before marriage, what types of family genetic histories are likely to lead to the calamity of major birth defects. The means to do it are within our reach."

Ohio's Idle Pay List Still On Increase

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Unemployment compensation claim totals are continuing a weeks-long rise in Ohio, but still are far below the totals of the same period last year.

In new claims, the total filed in the week ended Dec. 9 was 19,412. This compared to 17,161 in the week ended last Nov. 18, and an average of 30,604 new claims filed weekly in December of last year.

Continuing claims hit 94,985 in the week ended Dec. 9. This compared with 82,405 in the week ended last Nov. 18. In December last year the average continuing claims on file each week was 171,745.

"Mostly seasonal," bureau officials commented today when asked if there was any significance in the climb, relating to Ohio's economy. It was pointed out that some minor labor-management disputes, some layoffs in the steel industry added to the increases, but primarily the seasonal drop of activity in the construction industry was reflected in the totals.

Ohio Wildlife Agency Given $8 Million in Federal Funds

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Since 1939, the Ohio Division of Wildlife has received $8,257,287 and some odd cents from the federal government. Where does the money go?

The division—in announcing federal apportionment of $554,081 to it for cooperative fish and wildlife projects for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1962—has used the money for a variety of purposes.

People close to the field of preservation of natural resources draw an ugly picture of what Ohio would be like if these funds had not been available.

The money—"Fish and wildlife restoration funds," comes from federal excise taxes collected from manufacturers, importers and producers of certain types of hunting and fishing equipment.

The money is apportioned to the states under formulas prescribed by federal laws. For wildlife restoration (Pittman-Robertson Act) one half is divided among the states according to area and one-half on the basis of paid license holders in each state during the fiscal year. The 1962 Ohio figure is $390,308.

The Dingell-Johnson Act money for fish restoration is apportioned 40 per cent on the basis of area and 60 per cent on the basis of paid sport fishing license holders. The 1962 Ohio figure is $163,773.

Maximum apportionment to any state for either program is limited by law to 5 per cent of the total, while the minimum for wildlife restoration is one-half per cent and for fish restoration one per cent.

Under the Pittman - Robertson Act, the federal government can pay up to 75 per cent of the state's costs for work performed on jointly-approved projects concerned with acquiring and developing lands, restoring natural environment and carrying on wildlife management research problems.

Under the Dingell-Johnson Act, it can pay up to the same amount for work performed on jointly approved projects concerned with acquiring lands and developing areas of water adaptable as hatching, feeding, resting or breeding places for fish, restoring and improving natural environment for fish and carrying on research into fish culture and management problems.

The Pittman-Robertson Act has brought Ohio $6,668,798 and the Dingell - Johnson Act $1,588,488 since 1939.

Plum, Brown Hold League Leadership

CLEVELAND (AP)—The Cleveland Browns will go against the New York Giants in Yankee Stadium Sunday afternoon with the National Football League's leading passer and top ground gainer.

Quarterback Milt Plum, passing king last year, leads the flingers in percentage of passes completed at 61.4 and with the lowest percentage of interceptions, 3.2.

Fullback Jim Brown holds a 77-yard lead in his race with Green straight rushing crown. Brown has gained 1,306 yards in 281 carries for an average of 4.6 yards per carry. He picked up six yards in the league statistics Wednesday when a recheck of official scoring records showed he gained 62 yards instead of 56 against the Chicago Bears last Sunday.

NOT BUILT FOR ONE—It's hardly a bicycle built for one here as Willie McCovey, the giant first baseman of the San Francisco Giants, demonstrates one in the toy department of a San Francisco store where he is a salesman.

Maris Enters Parley for Fat Contract

NEW YORK (AP)—Roger Maris, batting behind Mickey Mantle for a change, makes his biggest salary pitch today while his slugging New York Yankee teammate fondles the "best contract I ever got."

Maris, who hit a record of 61 homers last season, also will ask for the best contract he ever received during a conference with General Manager Roy Hamy. The hard-hitting outfielder was paid about $45,000 last season.

"I expect no trouble from Roger," said Hamy after signing Mantle for an estimated $82,000 Wednesday, a raise of about $10,000. "I wouldn't be surprised if he signs right away. I spoke to him briefly earlier this week and he didn't sound tough to me."

Mantle signed after a brief meeting with Hamy, who said, "Mickey has reached Babe Ruth's figure." Later, he admitted, "it's a little over $80,000."

Mantle thus became the second highest paid player in Yankee history. Joe DiMaggio received $100,000 in 1951. Ruth got his $80,000 in 1932.

"It's the best contract I ever got," Mickey beamed. "I only hope I can live up to it. I'll be satisfied if I have another year like the last one."

Mantle had 54 homers, finishing second to Maris. He drove in 128 runs and hit .317 batting average was the fourth highest in the American League.

Only 3 Ohio College 5s See Action

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Ohio's college basketball action Wednesday night dropped to its lowest level since the cage season began in earnest 1½ weeks ago.

Only three games involved Buckeye schools. Wittenberg's slow, deliberate Tigers were edged by Transylvania 39-38 in Lexington, Ky. It was the second defeat for Wittenberg in three games — both losses have come in the Bluegrass State. Louisville downed the Tigers in their opener 44-36.

The Pioneers clinched the victory with a tip-in with 1:28 left. Wittenberg blew several shots which would have put them back into the lead as the clock ran out.

Oddly, in these days when 100 or more points in one game is far from uncommon, Wittenberg has scored only 122 in three games.

Defiance upheld the Ohio name with out-of-staters. The Yellow Jackets downed Tri-State of Indiana 86-66. Defiance was never behind in posting its fourth win in five starts. Ray Etzler, Gary Crawford and Curt Heximer combined for 53 of the Jackets' points. Etzler and Crawford got 18 apiece, and Heximer added 17 more.

In the only other game on the card, Wooster overtook host Bluffton in the early minutes and then remained a few points ahead for the rest of the game, winning 69-64. The Scots are 3-0 for the season. Bluffton is winless in four starts.

Orange '11' Picked For Liberty Bowl Win

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Advance weather forecasts today stacked up in favor of Syracuse but the big factor which has established the Orange a favorite over Miami in the Liberty Bowl Saturday is the one-two punch of All-America halfback Ernie Davis and quarterback Dave Sarette.

The weather forecast for the third annual nationally televised (NBC) football classic is near freezing temperatures with possible precipitation which would hinder the passing of Miami's George Mira to All-America end Bill Miller.

"All we're asking for is a fast track cause we sure don't have and murderers," said Miami Coach Andy Gustafson.

Gustafson said, "You've got to give Syracuse six points every time Davis walks on the field. Why I would have no right to expect my boys to stop Davis for one entire afternoon. We may stop him six or seven times in a row but he'll get you the eighth or ninth."

The Miami coach, accustomed to warmer temperatures, said the only way to beat Davis is to score a lot of points "and our offense is spread out wide enough to do that."

Coach Ben Schwartzwalder, meanwhile, said Sarette could fill the air with passes if the Hurricanes concentrate their defenses on the rushing of Davis. Noting that Miami has big line Schwartzwalder said a passing attack "is in our thinking."

Both teams planned final workouts today and Friday in the 100,000-seat Philadelphia Stadium.

Players Urged To Aid Drive

A final effort to boost plans for an American Legion baseball team here next season will be conducted here Saturday.

All area boys 16 and 18-years-old interested in baseball are requested to help distribute tickets in the downtown area on Saturday. Those participating will meet at the National Guard Armory on E. Franklin St. at 10:30 a. m. Saturday prior to the canvass.

The tickets are for a drawing which will be held Dec. 24 at the Memorial Hall. Prizes will include a record player and a gift certificate.

Legion officials said two teams may be formed here next year if the current drive is successful.

Every since Al Long Field in St. Petersburg, Fla., was opened 14 years ago, a New York team has always played the St. Louis Cardinals in the first spring exhibition game. Next spring the New York Mets, new team in the National League, face the Cards on Saturday, March 10.

Boosters Plan For Holiday Cage Tourney

The Circleville Booster Club has set plans for a Holiday Basketball Tournament for independent teams in this area.

Tentative plans call for the tourney to start Dec. 19. All games will be played in the Ohio National Guard Armory on E. Franklin St.

Teams and managers may contact the Armory or officers and directors of the Booster Club for further details concerning entry. The entry fee will be $20.

All money gained from the tournament will be used by the Booster Club for sports promotions for local school teams.

SPONSOR and individual trophies will go to the first place team. A trophy also will be awarded for second.

Booster officials said at least four teams already have expressed interest in the tournament. They said if enough squads enter, a league will be formed following the tourney.

Seven Detroit Tigers besides Norm Cash have won the American League batting title. The others were Ty Cobb, 12 times; Harry Heilmann, 4, and Heinie Manush, Charley Gehringer, George Kell, Al Kaline and Harvey Kuenn.

Ohio Wildlife Agency Given $8 Million in Federal Funds

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Since 1939, the Ohio Division of Wildlife has received $8,257,287 and some odd cents from the federal government. Where does the money go?

The division—in announcing federal apportionment of $554,081 to it for cooperative fish and wildlife projects for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1962—has used the money for a variety of purposes.

People close to the field of preservation of natural resources draw an ugly picture of what Ohio would be like if these funds had not been available.

The money—"Fish and wildlife restoration funds," comes from federal excise taxes collected from manufacturers, importers and producers of certain types of hunting and fishing equipment.

The money is apportioned to the states under formulas prescribed by federal laws. For wildlife restoration (Pittman-Robertson Act) one half is divided among the states according to area and one-half on the basis of paid license holders in each state during the fiscal year. The 1962 Ohio figure is $390,308.

The Dingell-Johnson Act money for fish restoration is apportioned 40 per cent on the basis of area and 60 per cent on the basis of paid sport fishing license holders. The 1962 Ohio figure is $163,773.

Maximum apportionment to any state for either program is limited by law to 5 per cent of the total, while the minimum for wildlife restoration is one-half per cent and for fish restoration one per cent.

Under the Pittman-Robertson Act, the federal government can pay up to 75 per cent of the state's costs for work performed on jointly-approved projects concerned with acquiring and developing lands, restoring natural environment and carrying on wildlife management research problems.

Under the Dingell-Johnson Act, it can pay up to the same amount for work performed on jointly approved projects concerned with acquiring lands and developing areas of water adaptable as hatchling, feeding, resting or breeding places for fish, restoring and improving natural environment for fish and carrying on research into fish culture and management problems.

The Pittman-Robertson Act has brought Ohio $6,668,798 and the Dingell-Johnson Act $1,588,488 since 1939.

Plum, Brown Hold League Leadership

CLEVELAND (AP)—The Cleveland Browns will go against the New York Giants in Yankee Stadium Sunday afternoon with the National Football League's leading passer and top ground gainer.

Quarterback Milt Plum, passing king last year, leads the flingers in percentage of passes completed at 61.4 and with the lowest percentage of interceptions, 3.2.

Fullback Jim Brown holds a 77-yard lead in his race with Green straight rushing crown. Brown has gained 1,306 yards in 281 carries for an average of 4.6 yards per carry. He picked up six yards in the league statistics Wednesday when a recheck of official scoring records showed he gained 62 yards instead of 56 against the Chicago Bears last Sunday.

NOT BUILT FOR ONE—It's hardly a bicycle built for one here as Willie McCovey, the giant first baseman of the San Francisco Giants, demonstrates one in the toy department of a San Francisco store where he is a salesman.

SHOE, SHOE AND BABY—Surprising many of his friends, Willie Shoemaker, the famed jockey, takes himself a bride in a private ceremony at Pasadena, Calif. She is Babbs Masterson. It was the second marriage for Shoemaker.

Maris Enters Parley for Fat Contract

NEW YORK (AP)—Roger Maris, batting behind Mickey Mantle for a change, makes his biggest salary pitch today while his slugging New York Yankee teammate fondles the "best contract I ever got."

Maris, who hit a record of 61 homers last season, also will ask for the best contract he ever received during a conference with General Manager Roy Hamy. The hard-hitting outfielder was paid about $45,000 last season.

"I expect no trouble from Roger," said Hamy after signing Mantle for an estimated $82,000 Wednesday, a raise of about $10,000. "I wouldn't be surprised if he signs right away. I spoke to him briefly earlier this week and he didn't sound tough to me."

Mantle signed after a brief meeting with Hamy, who said, "Mickey has reached Babe Ruth's figure." Later, he admitted, "it's a little over $80,000."

Mantle thus became the second highest paid player in Yankee history. Joe DiMaggio received $100,000 in 1951. Ruth got his $80,000 in 1932.

"It's the best contract I ever got," Mickey beamed. "I only hope I can live up to it. I'll be satisfied if I have another year like the last one."

Mantle had 54 homers, finishing second to Maris. He drove in 128 runs and hit .317 batting average was the fourth highest in the American League.

Only 3 Ohio College 5s See Action

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Ohio's college basketball action Wednesday night dropped to its lowest level since the cage season began in earnest 1½ weeks ago.

Only three games involved Buckeye schools.

Wittenberg's slow, deliberate Tigers were edged by Transylvania 39-38 in Lexington, Ky. It was the second defeat for Wittenberg in three games—both losses have come in the Bluegrass State. Louisville downed the Tigers in their opener 44-36.

The Pioneers clinched the victory with a tip-in with 1:28 left. Wittenberg blew several shots which would have put them back into the lead as the clock ran out.

Oddly, in these days when 100 or more points in one game is far from uncommon, Wittenberg has scored only 122 in three games.

Defiance upheld the Ohio name with out-of-staters. The Yellow Jackets downed Tri-State of Indiana 86-66. Defiance was never behind in posting its fourth win in five starts. Ray Etzler, Gary Crawford and Curt Heximer combined for 53 of the Jackets' points. Etzler and Crawford got 18 apiece, and Heximer added 17 more.

In the only other game on the card, Wooster overtook host Bluffton in the early minutes and then remained a few points ahead for the rest of the game, winning 69-64. The Scots are 3-0 for the season; Bluffton is winless in four starts.

Syracuse Gets Favorite Tag

Orange '11' Picked For Liberty Bowl Win

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Advance weather forecasts today stacked up in favor of Syracuse but the big factor which has established the Orange a favorite over Miami in the Liberty Bowl Saturday is the one-two punch of All-America halfback Ernie Davis and quarterback Dave Sarette.

The weather forecast for the third annual nationally televised (NBC) football classic is near freezing temperatures with possible precipitation which would hinder the passing of Miami's George Mira to All-America end Bill Miller.

"All we're asking for is a fast track cause we sure don't have and mudders," said Miami Coach Andy Gustafson.

Gustafson said, "You've got to give Syracuse six points every time Davis walks on the field. Why I would have no right to expect my boys to stop Davis for one entire afternoon. We may stop him six or seven times in a row but he'll get you the eighth or ninth."

The Miami coach, accustomed to warmer temperatures, said the only way to beat Davis is to score a lot of points "and our offense is spread out wide enough to do that."

Coach Ben Schwartzwalder, meanwhile, said Sarette could fill the air with passes if the Hurricanes concentrate their defenses on the rushing of Davis. Noting that Miami has big line Schwartzwalder said a passing attack "is in our thinking."

Both teams planned final workouts today and Friday in the 100,000-seat Philadelphia Stadium.

Boosters Plan For Holiday Cage Tourney

The Circleville Booster Club has set plans for a Holiday Basketball Tournament for independent teams in this area.

Tentative plans call for the tourney to start Dec. 19. All games will be played in the Ohio National Guard Armory on E. Franklin St.

Teams and managers may contact the Armory or officers and directors of the Booster Club for further details concerning entry. The entry fee will be $20.

All money gained from the tournament will be used by the Booster Club for sports promotions for local school teams.

SPONSOR and individual trophies will go to the first place team. A trophy also will be awarded for second.

Booster officials said at least four teams already have expressed interest in the tournament. They said if enough squads enter, a league will be formed following the tourney.

Seven Detroit Tigers besides Norm Cash have won the American League batting title. The others were Ty Cobb, 12 times; Harry Heilmann, 4, and Heinie Manush, Charley Gehring, George Kell, Al Kaline and Harvey Kuenn.

State's Legal Chief To Side With Canton

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Atty. Gen. Mark McElroy said Wednesday he would help Canton McKinley High School in its legal battle to field a football team next season.

The Ohio High School Athletic Association recently banned Canton McKinley from football competition for a year for alleged "theft" of football players from Portsmouth High School.

Stark County Common Pleas Court, on request of Prosecutor Norman J. Putman, enjoined the association from enforcing the ban. The OHSA then asked he supreme court Tuesday to prevent common pleas judges from setting aside the association's order.

McElroy said Hugh A. Sherer, his former chief counsel, and William E. Knepper, Columbus attorney, would appear without compensation to oppose the OHSA's request for a temporary writ of prohibition against the Stark County court.

The attorney general said his counsel had authorization to participate further in the case in pleadings on the right of the association, a nongovernmental body, to control public school athletics.

McElroy asserted such control should be through a government agency rather than a self-perpetuating association of private persons.

The association is composed of about 1,500 senior and junior high schools. Its board of control claimed that McKinley used undue influence to induce the family of James and Larry Austin, football-playing brothers, to move from Portsmouth to Canton before the 1961 gridiron season.

George Squires, a native of England, led Wyoming's soccer scorers during the past season with 16 goals.

Views on Television - Radio

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

AP W-Radio Writer

NEW YORK (AP)—Bob Hope certainly can crowd a lot into an hour variety show.

Wednesday night, for instance, he introduced a dozen or so "Hollywood deb stars," beauty

JACK-POT—One of the veteran stars of the Cincinnati Royals of the National Basketball Assoc., Jack Twyman joins 12 other pro cagers in a select group of scorers after he sinks the 10,000th point of his career in a game with Boston in Cincinnati.

queens of five different football bowls and one All-American football team.

In addition, he had a sketch kiding "Ben Casey," a doctor-show on a rival network (rather diplomatically overlooking "Dr. Kildare" on his own NBC), a comedy bit around the recent Bel Air, Calif., fires and still another involving a pool game.

But, as usual, the best part of the show was Hope's opening monologue, sharp and topical. None of the sketches came off very well—they rarely do on a Hope show. Kidding the TV series about doctors is currently reaching epidemic proportions among V comedians, and it's hard to get laughs about a fire that was both serious and tragic.

The long-awaited Nielsen ratings for mid-November TV shows are finally out—these are the ones sponsors and advertising agencies believe are more accurate indications of what people are looking at than the early-season audience estimates. And there's not one single new show on the top-10 list.

The list of old favorites reads, from top to bottom "Wagon Train," "Bonanza," "Perry Mason," "Andy Griffith Show," "Real McCoys," "My Three Sons," "Danny Thomas Show," "Gunsmoke," "Red Skelton Show" and "Dennis the Menace." Recommended tonight: "A Joyful Noise," CBS, 7:30-8:30 (Eastern Standard Time)—Leonard Bernstein and the New York Philharmonic Orchestra in a program of Christmas music.

CAGE COACH DEAD—A veteran cage and football coach, Franklin C. (Cappy) Cappon, head basketball mentor at Princeton, collapsed and died in the shower room after a practice session. Cappon, 61, apparent victim of a heart attack, has been coach at Princeton since 1938 and formerly coached at Luther College, Kansas and Michigan.

State's Legal Chief To Side With Canton

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Atty. Gen. Mark McElroy said Wednesday he would help Canton McKinley High School in its legal battle to field a football team next season.

The Ohio High School Athletic Association recently banned Canton McKinley from football competition for a year for alleged "theft" of football players from Portsmouth High School.

Stark County Common Pleas Court, on request of Prosecutor Norman J. Putman, enjoined the association from enforcing the ban. The OHSAA then asked the supreme court Tuesday to prevent common pleas judges from setting aside the association's order.

McElroy said Hugh A. Sherer, his former chief counsel, and William E. Knepper, Columbus attorney, would appear without compensation to oppose the OHSAA's request for a temporary writ of prohibition against the Stark County court.

The attorney general said his counsel had authorization to participate further in the case in pleadings on the right of the association, a non-governmental body, to control public school athletics.

McElroy asserted such control should be through a government agency rather than a self-perpetuating association of private persons.

The association is composed of about 1,500 senior and junior high schools. Its board of control claimed that McKinley used undue influence to induce the family of James and Larry Austin, football-playing brothers, to move from Portsmouth to Canton before the 1961 gridiron season.

George Squires, a native of England, led Wyoming's soccer scorers during the past season with 16 goals.

Views on Television - Radio

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

AP V-Radio Writer
NEW YORK (AP)—Bob Hope certainly can crowd a lot into an hour variety show.

Wednesday night, for instance, he introduced a dozen or so "Hollywood deb stars," beauty

JACK-POT—One of the veteran stars of the Cincinnati Royals of the National Basketball Assoc., Jack Twyman joins 12 other pro cagers in a select group of scorers after he sinks the 10,000th point of his career in a game with Boston in Cincinnati.

queens of five different football bowls and one All-American football team.

In addition, he had a sketch kiding "Ben Casey," a doctor-show on a rival network (rather diplomatically overlooking "Dr. Kildare" on his own NBC), a comedy bit around the recent Bel Air, Calif., fires and still another involving a pool game.

But, as usual, the best part of the show was Hope's opening monologue, sharp and topical. None of the sketches came off very well—they rarely do on a Hope show. Kidding the TV series about doctors is currently reaching epidemic proportions among V comedians, and it's hard to get laughs about a fire that was both serious and tragic.

The long-awaited Nielsen ratings for mid-November TV shows are finally out—these are the ones sponsors and advertising agencies believe are more accurate indications of what people are looking at than the early-season audience estimates. And there's not one single new show on the top-10 list.

The list of old favorites reads from top to bottom "Wagon Train," "Bonanza," "Perry Mason," "Andy Griffith Show," "Real McCoys," "My Three Sons," "Danny Thomas Show," "Gunsmoke," "Red Skelton Show" and "Dennis the Menace."

Recommended tonight: "A Joyful Noise," CBS, 7:30-8:30 (Eastern Standard Time)—Leonard Bernstein and the New York Philharmonic Orchestra in a program of Christmas music.

CAGE COACH DEAD—A veteran cage and football coach, Franklin C. (Cappy) Cappon, head basketball mentor at Princeton, collapsed and died in the shower room after a practice session. Cappon, 61, apparent victim of a heart attack, has been coach at Princeton since 1938 and formerly coached at Luther College, Kansas and Michigan.

Christmas Greetings

- ★ We'll exchange silver dollars for paper money
- ★ We'll furnish a gift envelope with each coin

As a gift for your newsboy... to put into a child's stocking... or as a last-minute gift for anyone... few things can beat a good, old-fashioned silver dollar.

This year, as a special free service to our customers and friends, our tellers will exchange silver dollars for your paper money. And we'll furnish you with a nicely-printed presentation envelope with each silver dollar, to "dress it up" for Christmas giving.

Everyone is welcome to stop in and get the silver dollars and envelopes WHILE OUR SUPPLY LASTS. There is no obligation. Come in soon for yours!
